

OLD ORDER PASSES

Today is the Twilight of the Belted Earl.

British Aristocracy, for So Many Centuries Secure in its High Place, is Feeling the Ground Slip Under its Feet.

In one of the old Plantagenet houses of England the belted earl and his ladyship live in one corner of the castle. The rest of the fine old mansion is closed. William Allen White writes in Collier's. The servants needed to run the house are no longer available. Money will not hire them. Their men have been commissioned in the army because the earl's son—who had a right to sit at the foot of the throne and who had also the blessed privilege of hearing the king by ancient right address him as cousin—the earl's son lighted one cigarette too many on the parapet, and when he and his kind from Eton and Harrow went out, commissions in the army felt to the cook's son and the housekeeper's son and the parlormaid's brother and chambermaid's sweetheart, who, being commissioned, promptly took their women-kind out of service. They are feeling what they never felt before, these domestic servants of the nobility—the spur of ambition.

So they have left the castle, and such of the servants as stay have begun to assert their rights, to manifest their self-respect. "Whatever you do," said her ladyship to her guest, "don't ring a bell!" To the question in the visitor's face the hostess replied: "If you ring a bell the servants will leave. I have only three. They have announced that they will do their work, but they forbid interruptions by bells!" The hot water appeared on schedule; the service flowed into the guestroom in its regular channel, except that fires were so low that the visitors' feet were frostbitten; the meals were served on time and were well cooked. But the servants were efficient shop assistants, no longer feudal serfs. And the earl chopped the trees in his own forest with his own hands for his own fires. The meager household allowance of coal that the fuel controller gave to the earl from the mines under the earl's own lands was barely enough to heat the servants' rooms.

And as for the broad estate over which the earl ruled as an agricultural overlord six years ago—an agricultural overlord and industrial entrepreneur through his coal mines—the estate is all crumbling. The land is passing into the hands of small farmers; the old yeoman farmer, fairly well-to-do, of good old yeoman stock, going back to the Conqueror—he and his kind are taking the ownership of the land of the belted earl in 100-acre lots, and the nation, having taken charge of the earl's coal mines, may now relieve him of the burden of mine ownership as well. For the parliamentary committee by a large majority has reported in favor of the government ownership of all mines of every description.

And because the earl's son sleeps under the popples of Flanders and his daughters are married and gone, the earl is a weary, confused old man, chopping wood in the forest to keep his old wife warm. He cannot fight the new order. No leadership is calling him. He knows that the end is coming for him and his kind. He realizes quite definitely that in a few years the castle of the Plantagenets, who were royal in the last Henry's days, probably will fall into the hands of a brewer or a draper or a stock broker, who will put in a central heating plant to defile it, debase the privacy of every bedroom with hot and cold water, and degrade the place with a wilderness of bathrooms, so that four servants can run the place on two eight-hour shifts where 100 retainers once served the baron under Elizabeth.

The millions the old earl received from the yeoman farmers for his land have been divided with the state in yearly income taxes; and now on the horizon he sees a parliamentary bill gradually approach which provides that capital as well as income shall be heavily taxed. So the old man in the forest sees even his capital unsafe, and he wonders curiously how the little gray man at Windsor feels about the prospects of succession for the genial young prince of Wales.

Dish Runs Away With Spoon.

A chain of restaurants in this city has to purchase more than a million spoons, forks and knives every year. Others tell the same story. Some of the help, according to the management of a Wall street restaurant, must be reckoned on as furnishing their homes with "borrowed" tableware and many patrons take it for souvenirs as unblushingly as they would appropriate an umbrella on a rainy day.

A Wall street man was invited to a dinner at the house of a rich client not long ago and during the evening his hostess proudly showed him hundreds of spoons, forks and knives bearing the names of hotels and restaurants both of this country and Europe. "It took me ten years to get this collection together," said the lady, "and I didn't pay for one of them."

"And the dish ran away with the spoon." Yes, in the days of Old Mother Hubbard, but in modern times the patrons and the help. And the cost? Oh, that's passed on to the hungry patrons who go to the restaurant not to purloin, but to eat.—Wall Street Journal.

"Bah, sir!" snorted the irritable member of the club. "It's a waste of time to argue with you!"
"You're an inconsistent fellow!" said the unhappy victim.
"What do you mean?"
"If you consider it a waste of time to argue with me, why don't you leave go of my coat lapels and let me get on with my business?"

DOUBLE-BARRED CROSS IS HEALTH EMBLEM

Insignia Of Anti-Tuberculosis Work Throughout World Is 17 Years Old.

Designed by Frenchman.
Do you know the double-barred Red Cross? Do you know what it stands for?
Soldiers returning from overseas know it. War workers of the various welfare organizations know it. Hundreds of French and Belgian refugees know it. Disabled French and Italian soldiers hold it in veneration. Down in the French Province of Lorraine it is second in esteem only to the Lorraine Cross, which it somewhat resembles.

The double-barred Red Cross is the world-wide emblem of the world-wide fight against tuberculosis. It has flown over tuberculosis camps in all the allied countries. It has waved from the front of rolling tuberculosis clinics that have visited the most isolated rural districts of the United States. It waves today over camps in America where thousands of American soldiers and sailors are fighting tuberculosis contracted from exposure at the front, from being gassed, from the "flu" and from other experiences during the war.
In October, 1902, the International Anti-Tuberculosis Association adopted the double-barred Red Cross as the emblem of the world-wide fight against tuberculosis. It was proposed by Dr. G. Sersiron, of Paris. It is a combination of the Croix de Lorraine and the Greek Cross. Both crosses are symbolic of charity and help to humanity.

Four years later, in 1906, the double-barred Red Cross was carried into America. It was in this year that the National Tuberculosis Association was formed and during the intervening years the cross has been carried all over the United States by the National Association and its affiliated State and local organizations that now number 1,000.

The Maryland Tuberculosis Association is one of these affiliated organizations. It is doing its part in the big nation-wide campaign to be waged against tuberculosis. Owing to war conditions and the flu epidemic of last winter, the death rate from the disease has increased 16 per cent. A campaign of education, prevention and cure will be carried on with increased effort. To finance the fight, $6,500,000 worth of Red Cross Christmas Seals for 1919 must be sold. Maryland's share is $125,000. Of this amount $100,000 will be raised in the City of Baltimore and the remainder in the counties. "Every seal is a penny's worth of cure and prevention."

The county quotas are:
Garrett, $800; Allegany, $2,500; Washington, $2,375; Frederick, $3,100; Carroll, $2,000; Montgomery, $925; Baltimore, $2,750; Harford, $1,650; Howard, $875; Anne Arundel, $825; Prince George's, $825; Calvert, $200; St. Mary's, $200; Charles, $200; Cecil, $700; Kent, $700; Queen Anne's, $700; Talbot, $700; Wicomico, $700; Worcester, $700; Dorchester, $700; Somerset, $700; Caroline, $700.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.
Nobody swatted the fly.
Nobody had appendicitis.
Nobody wore white shoes.
Nobody sprayed orchards.
You never heard of a "Tin Lizzie."

Advertisers did not tell the truth. Farmers came to town for their mail. The hired girl drew one-fifty a week. The butcher "threw in" a chunk of liver. Nobody "listened in" in a telephone. Strawstacks were burned instead of baled. Windows were left closed at night. There were no sleeping porches. Tuberculosis was called consumption and believed to be hereditary. Nobody bought and used Red Cross Christmas seals.

THIS IS THE RED CROSS CHRISTMAS SEAL FOR 1919.

RED CROSS CHRISTMAS SEALS 12 YEARS OLD

Little Stamps That Finance Fight Against Tuberculosis Originated in Delaware.

Idea Came From Denmark.
The Red Cross Christmas Seal, as millions of Americans know it today, is an agent of happiness and health. It was originated in 1907 by Miss Emily Bissel, of Wilmington, Delaware, who had learned through Jacob Ellis of somewhat similar seals that were sold in Denmark for the purpose of raising funds to fight disease.

Miss Bissel persuaded the American Red Cross to take up the idea with the result that the seals were sold in a limited number of communities in 1908. The sale yielded a revenue of approximately $2,000. The Red Cross then decided to issue the Seals each year and to turn the proceeds over to the National Tuberculosis Association and its affiliated societies for the purpose of financing the fight against tuberculosis. The number of seals sold in America increased by leaps and bounds until in 1917 the total reached 180,000,000. In 1918, as a war measure, the seals were not sold but through an agreement between the Red Cross and the National Tuberculosis Association, were awarded in limited quantities to each member of the Red Cross.

This year the seals are again on sale beginning December 1. More than half a billion seals have been printed for distribution to state and local organizations. In addition to the seals, there will be offered this year "Health Bonds" in denominations ranging from $5 to $500 to be sold in lieu of seals to large contributors who do not send out a sufficient quantity of mail in December to make use of all the seals they would like to purchase.

Maryland will be particularly interested in this year's sale of Red Cross Christmas Seals, for the death rate from tuberculosis in Maryland is disgracefully high—nearly 44 per cent greater than the death rate from the disease throughout the United States as a whole. The state is one of the "sore spots" on the national health map, and the campaign of education to prevent and cure tuberculosis needs to be especially stressed here.

Baltimore city and all of the counties will have special committees to urge the sale of the seals. The quota for the state is $125,000 worth of the little stickers, this amount being divided between Baltimore city and the counties in this way: Baltimore city, $100,000; Allegany, $2,500; Anne Arundel, $825; Baltimore, $2,750; Calvert, $200; Caroline, $700; Carroll, $2,000; Cecil, $700; Charles, $200; Dorchester, $700; Frederick, $3,100; Garrett, $800; Harford, $1,650; Howard, $875; Kent, $700; Montgomery, $925; Prince George's, $825; Queen Anne's, $700; St. Mary's, $200; Somerset, $700; Talbot, $700; Washington, $2,375; Wicomico, $700; Worcester, $700.

GARRETT HAS LOWEST COUNTY DEATH RATE

Tuberculosis Figures For Counties Show "Sore Spots" On Health Map.

Two people out of every thousand in Maryland died of tuberculosis last year. Figures compiled by the State Board of Health show it.

In fact, the death rate from pulmonary tuberculosis per thousand of population was 204.5 or 144 times greater than the average rate for the country as a whole, which was 141.6. St. Mary's and Anne Arundel counties had the highest death rates from the disease, while Garrett carried off honors as the healthiest county.

Garrett county had only nine deaths from tuberculosis, a death rate of only 40 per thousand of population. Garrett has a fairly active local tuberculosis organization cooperating with the Maryland and the National Tuberculosis Association in all health moves.

It has no special tuberculosis nurse, as some of the counties have, though it is now considering the appointment of a special county social worker.

The following are the county tuberculosis death rates, approximated on the latest estimated population figures:

Allegany	0.87
Anne Arundel	2.20
Baltimore	1.79
Calvert	1.93
Caroline	1.90
Carroll	1.17

The Most Welcome Tire That Ever Came to Market

Men Who Appreciate Superlative Values Prefer The Brunswick

In every great tire factory, the chief question is: "How much can we give for the money?" And the product depends on the policy adopted.

Every man who has become acquainted with Brunswick Tires knows that Brunswick standards are again evident. This famous concern—noted as a leader in every line it entered since 1845—has once more proved that its policy is right.

A perfect tire is simply a matter of knowledge and standards and skill. No secrets nor patents prevent making an ideal tire.

But standards come first. For in tire making there is vast room for skimping, for subtle economies, for hidden shortcomings. Makers without the highest standards don't build high-grade tires.

The Brunswick organization of tire makers includes a brilliant staff of technical experts. Not a man among them has spent less than 20 years in handling rubber.

Each is a master of his craft. And the new ideas they bring to the attention of Brunswick directors receive sincere consideration.

Every proved betterment is adopted unanimously.

The Brunswick Tire is a combination of acknowledged features—plus Brunswick standards of manufacture.

The result is a super-tire, the like of which you have never known before. The kind of a tire you will gladly join in welcoming.

Yet Brunswicks cost no more than like-type tires.

Try ONE Brunswick. We promise a surprise. And we feel certain that you will want ALL Brunswicks.

Then good tires will have a new meaning to you.

TUESDAY MORNING, DEC. 2, 1919

Some of the people who claim to use horse sense still decline to eat any rolled oats for breakfast.

The people whose credit is worthless have kindly consented to buy Christmas gifts early and have them charged.

After the people raise the taxes in order to pay for the cost of living, then the cost of living goes up to pay for the taxes.

It looks as if before the country gets the dry law tangle straightened out the constitution will probably prove to be unconstitutional.

The folks who want free publicity are convinced that the newspaper press is a grand institution and should be treated with great dignity.

The popular theory of solving the Armenian question is to wait until the Turks murder all the Armenians and then there won't be any question.

The people who forget to buy Christmas gifts early may be quite angry if the hurried express people forget to deliver their stuff in season for the holiday.

The folks who go out of town to buy their Christmas gifts when all of them could just as well be had here in Princess Anne, evidently place very little value on their time.

These people who are going to send bombs in the mail made up to look like Christmas packages, belong to societies that claim they are trying to establish the brotherhood of man.

After paying 50 cents a pound for Thanksgiving turkey that used to sell for 20 cents, most householders are thoroughly convinced that these are progressive times.

"Learner" writes to the editor asking what "Direct action" is. Well, the kids of Princess Anne give an example of it when they raid the pantry after school instead of waiting until supper.

Some folks didn't save any money the past summer because they were sure they could save some this winter and they won't save any this winter because their expenses will be so much less next summer.

Someone wants to know what to give a man for Christmas. Well, if you would give him positive assurance that you won't present him with either a cross stitched handkerchief holder or a crocheted stocking bag, it would relieve his mind of one pressing anxiety.

After having gone to war to free the world of German domination and now as the result of other kinds of domination being unable to get coal to run the country with, the American people are wondering what they fought for anyway.

CLEANING UP FOR WINTER

The ardor for improvement which is so well manifested in the spring time, is not always so evident in getting ready for winter. In spring people are anticipating the enjoyment of their flowers and grounds and take hold of clean-up work with enthusiasm. Fall cleaning seems more like a dead horse, and like paying for past pleasure you have had from lawn and garden.

However, a place littered up with flower and vegetable stalks and dead leaves looks slouchy all winter and casts discredit on itself and its whole neighborhood. A place cleaned up for cold weather has a trim beauty of its own that suggests home pride and community spirit.

If you want Princess Anne to look its best for the four long months coming on, do help out by seeing that your place is free from all disorder, as the ladies of our Civic Club has suggested many times.

Elam K. Woodoth Wants Your Holly, Wreaths and Mistletoe

He wanted it last year, and got it, and it is a matter of record that he paid more money to the shippers than any other man in the business. The past fifteen years he has been receiving Holly Wreaths, Box Holly and other greens from this section and invariably has paid the shippers more money than any other firm in the business.

If you want any information, ask him; he will tell you, and tell you the truth. When he says, "Don't ship any Greens before the 5th or 6th of December," he knows what he is talking about. The Railroad Company will not allow the goods to remain in the depot, and as there is no trade for Greens before December 10th, why ship them until it is time for them to be sold.

Prices were high last year, but all indications point to higher prices this year, and Mr. Woodoth is the man to get the high prices for the shippers.

Quite a few jobbers will be around to see you and want to buy your Wreaths, or whatever you have to sell, but if you are wise you will stick to the Old Reliable Merchant who has always made good. When the time comes, which is December 5th or 6th, start all your shipments to

Elam K. Woodoth

P. S.—If you don't know him, you had better get acquainted. It will be money in your pocket.

SAVE MONEY

Sure every one wants to save a dollar, and when it comes to saving $10.00, well most everybody would mix a little pleasure with business and drive these pleasant days a few miles over good, smooth roads, return home with lungs full of ozone, a Willard Battery and $10.00 better in pocket. The body is distinctly a Buick creation, broadening out to accommodate a wide, deep seat for three, then curving in at the back to form a trim rear deck with a weather-proof carrying space for luggage.

Inclined windshield, handsome improved top of high-grade material, side curtains that swing open with the doors, large gasoline tank and extra demountable rim complete the equipment of this smart, business-like car.

KEEP EYE ON HENS

Hawaiian Owners of Chickens
Are Sleeping Lightly.

Fearful That Mme. Pele, the Goddess Who Lives in Kilauea Crater, Is Eager for More Poultry to Furnish Her Dinner.

Owners of coal-black game cocks in Hawaii are keeping out an eye to see that the chicken house is locked securely every night.

And that's all because the volcano of Kilauea is now the most active it has been for 35 years.

Six months ago Kilauea was sputtering away in its mile-wide bowl of burning, molten rock, with the level of the flaming crimson sea of boiling lava 900 feet from the top of the crater.

The night that Secretary of the Navy Daniels and his party paid Kilauea a visit—the latter part of August—the level of the seething lava lake was about 50 feet below the crater's top.

Several overflows already have occurred. A cone which once jutted 500 feet above the crater's top has melted away into the sea of fire. Two hours after the secretary and his party left the main crater and a second smaller one, caved in, joining the craters.

And Kilauea still is going strong.

As to the connection of all this with coal-black game cocks? Oh, that's very simple.

Many years ago, when the islands first were becoming a white man's land, Kilauea became angry. It roared and hissed and sputtered and the ground shook. Then the lava overflowed and moved slowly down the mountain side toward Hilo.

The native Hawaiians had been Christians but a comparatively short time. Their fright knew no bounds, for the island legends are full of the tales of what Kilauea did when Mme. Pele, the goddess who lived in Kilauea's crater, became angry.

So the Hawaiians prayed that the flow might stop, but it didn't.

Then they danced, but that was ineffective.

Finally, forgetting their Christianity for a time, they sent a party by canoe to Honolulu to consult a few remaining priests of the days when they all worshiped the strange South sea deities.

"Throw a black rooster into the lava flow," was the advice they brought back.

The sleekest, shiniest cock on the island of Hawaii was picked for the sacrifice, and while the maidens danced, the warriors cast the squawking bird into the base of the lava flow.

In an hour the flow had stopped. Mme. Pele, the most-feared goddess of the island, evidently had been satisfied with a chicken dinner.

American residents of the island believe that if there is ever another big lava flow, coal-black roosters will come into demand once more.

A "No" That Made a Friend.

A business man went to two bankers. He wished to borrow $2,000 from one and $1,000 from the other. Lyman Anson tells the story in the October issue of System, the Magazine of Business: The first banker loaned him $2,000, but was so unpleasant and condescending about it that the business man went back to his office with the thought, "I'll never have any more dealings with that bank as long as I live." The second banker refused the loan of $1,000, but he did it so graciously and with so clear an exposition of his reasons, that the business man left as a booster for the bank, and said to himself, "I'm going to put my affairs in such shape that there will be no earthly reason why this man should not loan to me. I want to do business with him." The second banker had learned the art of saying "No." It is a real art. You have to practice it every day.

Automobile Does Chores.

Another way of making an automobile do all the farm chores at a small expense for gasoline has been devised by Frank R. Welsgerber of Salina, Kan. His invention is an attachment comprising a frame with a pulley at its forward end adapted to project in front of the radiator of the car; the frame has a coupling connecting its shaft to the crankshaft of the automobile, so that by starting up the engine it is possible to operate the threshing machine, saw wood, churn the butter, turn the ice cream freezer, cut the fodder, turn the grindstone, operate the cream separator, or even milk the cow if the farmer is equipped with suitable milking apparatus.

Unrest.

"Now," inquired the man of ponderous manner, "what is the cause of all this unrest?"

"Well," replied the man who always tries to give some kind of an answer; "I can't undertake to speak for anybody except myself. Most of mine is caused by a family of jazzmaniacs in the adjacent flat."

Only Wings.

"How do you know it was a stork and not an angel that brought your little brother?"

"Cause I heard pa complain about the size of the bill, and I guess angels don't have bills."

Machine Washes Cars.

A machine has been invented to wash the outside of railroad cars as they pass through it.

The Road—In New Overland 4 on Three-Point Cantilever Springs

YOU expect a bad road to ride as it looks. It did, until the introduction of the Overland 4 Springbase.

Overland 4 does not change the road, but it does change the manner in which you can ride on it. It gives you comfort instead of discomfort. It gives you a smooth, sailing sensation instead of bouncing and swaying.

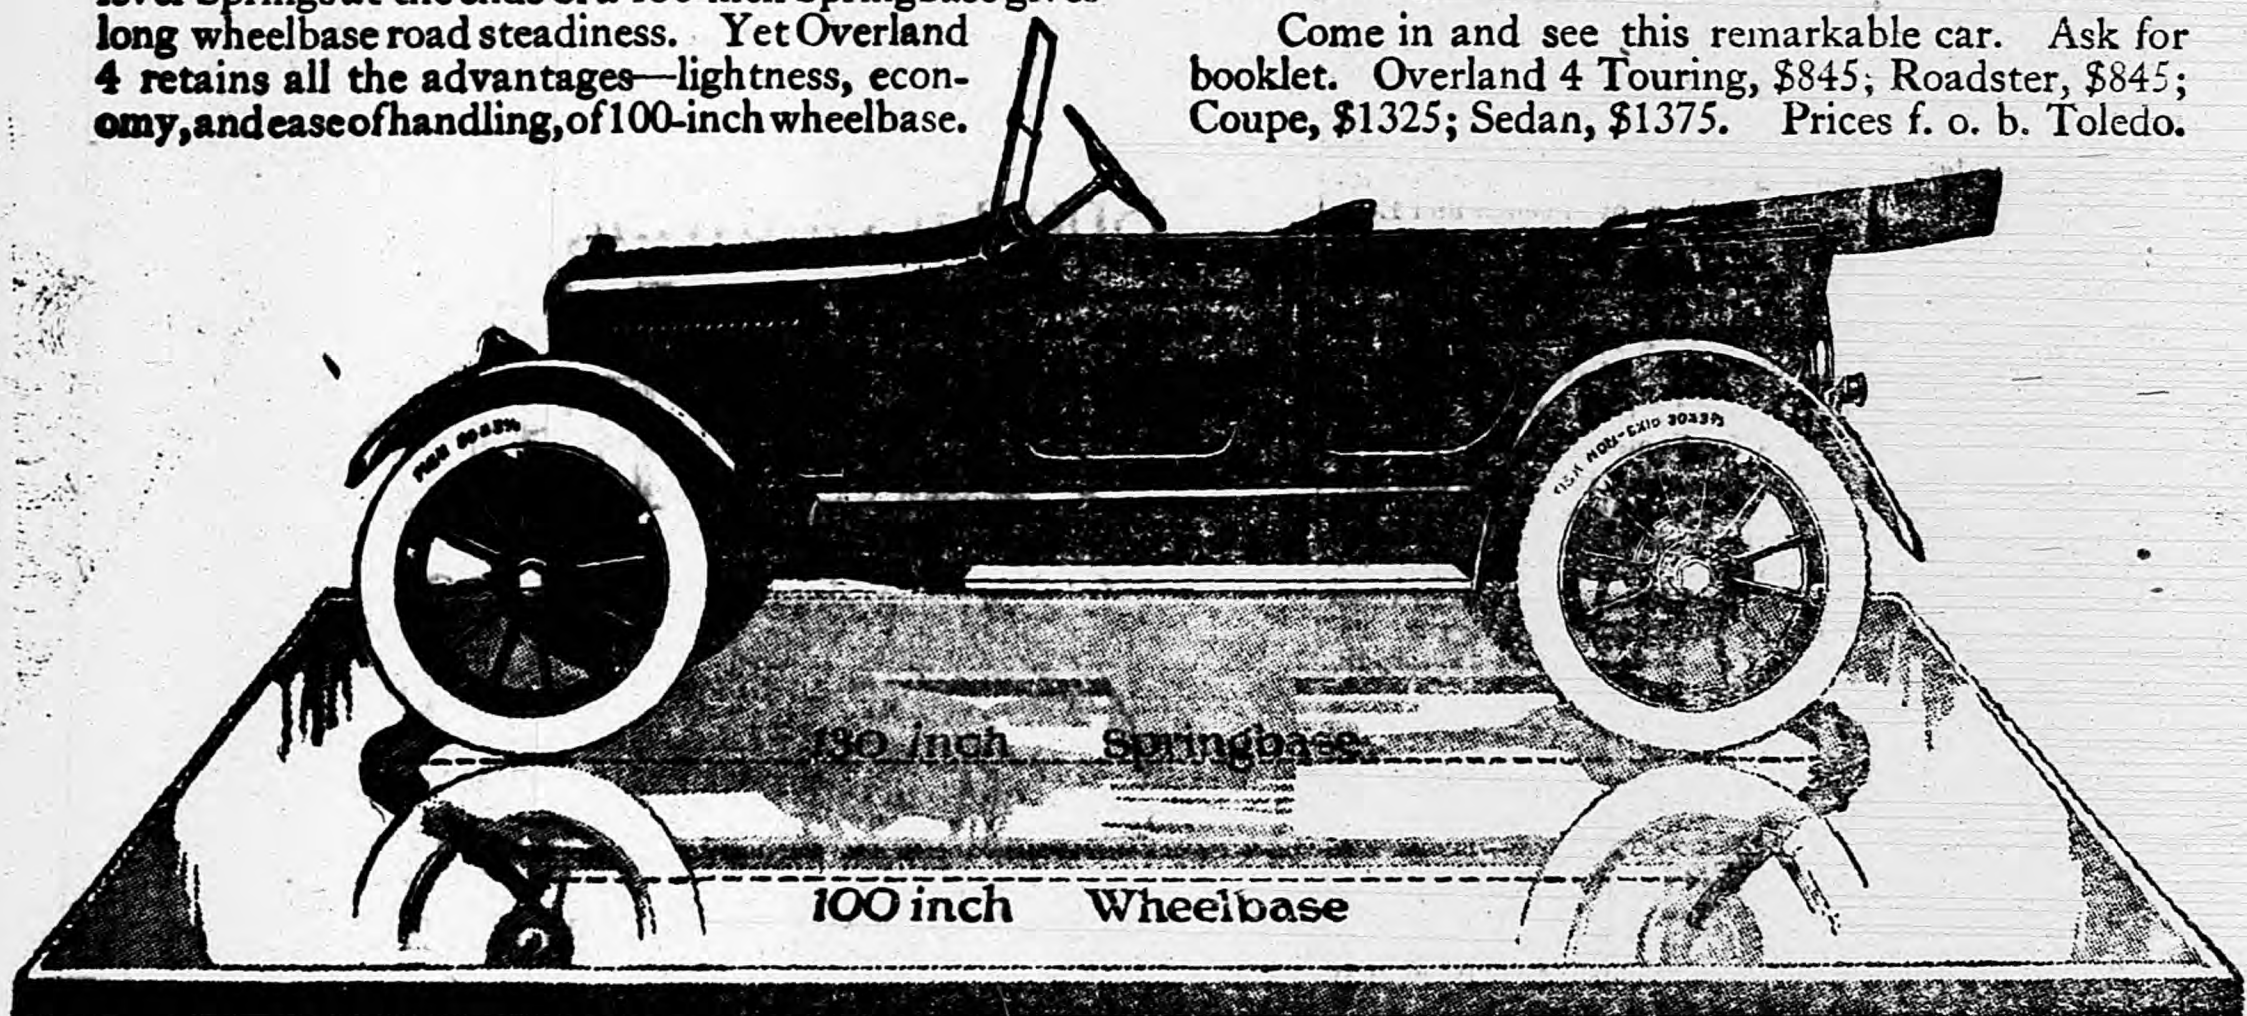

The Diagonal attachment of Three-Point Cantilever Springs at the ends of a 130-inch Springbase gives long wheelbase road steadiness. Yet Overland 4 retains all the advantages—lightness, economy, and ease of handling, of 100-inch wheelbase.

This means an altogether new standard of riding comfort, a noteworthy reduction in the wear and tear which lessens the efficiency of a car. The new springs give longer life to every part and thus minimize upkeep and replacement costs.

Tires wear longer because cushioned against hammering blows. Light weight means marked economy in gas, oil and running expense.

Overland 4's equipment is complete from Auto-Lite Starting and Lighting to Demountable Rims.

Owing to the great scarcity and large increase in the price of newspaper paper—2 to 5 cents per pound higher than last year—and all labor conditions, it is impossible for us to issue this paper at the rate of $1.00 per year. Therefore, beginning on January 1st, 1920, the subscription price will be $1.50 a year in advance.

Every subscriber to the Marylander and Herald whose pink address slip is marked "18" or "19" is requested to pay his subscription. If the slip reads January "18" or "19," or February, or March, or any other month in the years 1918 or 1919, it means your subscription has expired and you should send that amount by mail or call at this office and settle the same at once.

All subscribers who are in arrears after January 1st, 1920, will be removed from our subscription list as the cost of production makes it necessary to cut down our output to those who pay promptly.

POSTOFFICE CLOSED ON SUNDAYS

No Delivery of Mail to General Public—Lock Box Mail As Usual

Postoffice Inspector Burt L. Pitcher, who is at present located at the Washington Hotel, has informed Postmaster Earle B. Polk that for the past 2 years the Princess Anne postoffice has been opened on Sundays in direct violation of law. That part of the Postal Law Regulations which affect this office is here quoted:

"Section 283. Postoffices of the first and second classes shall not be opened on Sundays for the purpose of delivering mail to the general public, but this provision shall not prevent the prompt delivery of special delivery mail."

Consequently, hereafter, the Princess Anne postoffice will not be opened on Sundays for delivery of mail to the general public, but patrons may obtain mail from lock boxes as usual.

Higher Pay For Census Enumerators

Increase in the rates of pay for enumerators of the fourteenth decennial census to four cents for each person enumerated and 30 cents for each farm reported, was announced last Thursday by Director Sam L. Rodgers. Approximately 87,000 enumerators are affected.

The new rates are the maximum authorized by law. Payment during the last census was at the rate of 2 to 3 cents, per name and 20 cents per farm. The increase was necessary to attract properly qualified men and women, Mr. Rodgers said.

Enumerators will be paid 10 cents for each barn or enclosure containing live stock not on a farm, 30 cents for each manufacturing establishment enumerated, and 50 cents for each irrigation or draining enterprise reported.

With this increase of pay it is hoped that all supervisors will be able at once to complete the organization of their forces.

Big Dock Fire In Baltimore

Fire early last Wednesday destroyed two big piers of the Canton Lumber Company along Baltimore harbor, burned several vessels, including the steamship Major L'Enfant, a United States Government vessel; the State oyster steamship, Governor McLane; a number of oyster vessels and several tugs that were in dry-dock. The loss is estimated at $1,000,000.

The crews of a number of the vessels were forced to leap into the icy waters of the harbor to escape the flames.

One man, Wm. H. Train, U. S. Quartermaster's Department, a cook on the Major L'Enfant, was burned to death. Among the vessels damaged were the big excursion steamship Dreamland, the United States Shipping Board steamships Lake Duval and Nupolea, and the oil tanker Wilhelm Jebens.

Ritchie Wants Simple Inauguration

Governor-elect Ritchie has requested that the ceremonies incident to his inauguration on the second Wednesday in January be as simple as possible.

This desire was communicated to Philip B. Perlman from French Lick, Ind., where the Governor-elect is resting, and carried by him to Dr. J. Hubert Wade, the Democratic State chairman, who, by virtue of his position, is the master of the ceremonies incident to the occasion.

Along with the desire for simplicity Mr. Ritchie wished the general public to understand that it was invited as an entirety. All making the trip to Annapolis will be welcome.

Mr. I. T. James Brown, of Princess Anne, who has been connected with the Internal Revenue Service for the past three years, has been appointed a Deputy Supervisor, and is now making his headquarters in Crisfield.

NEGROES SHOOT UP GYPSY CAMP

Worsted In Horse Deal Colored Men Have Shooting Affray

On Monday night of last week an armed band of negroes made an attack upon Harrison's band of gypsies, from New Jersey, who were camping near the Pocomoke river road, in Somerset county, on the land of George Johnson, a colored man.

The affair is said to have been caused by horse trading in which Ed. Cottman was worsted. The negro took the horse away from the camp and after using it drove it back on Monday, telling the gypsies that he was dissatisfied and wanted his horse back. The gypsies refused to return the horse.

It is supposed that the negro then organized negroes and returned to the camp about 8 o'clock that night. About 12 or 15 men were in the party of negroes, it is said, and all are supposed to have been armed. It is understood that about 30 shots were fired. Of the nine gypsies who were wounded, one woman is in a precarious condition.

Sheriff Dryden was notified, who took several deputies to the scene, arriving after the shooting ceased, but much excitement prevailed among the crowd from Pocomoke City and surrounding territory which had gathered at the gypsy camp. The sheriff arrested Edward Cottman, Horace Cottman, Edward Martin and Jeffrey Long, all negroes, and lodged them in jail here on Tuesday charged with participation in the shooting affair. On Wednesday seven more negroes, George Kirkwood, George Kelsey, Francis Kersey, William Long, Arzah Bevans, Clarence Long and Arzah Cottman, were arrested and lodged in jail.

Fountain's Trial In Towson

The Circuit Court for Talbot county, which has been in session for a little over two weeks, at Easton, adjourned last Tuesday, but before doing so disposed of the case of Isaiah Fountain, colored, who was convicted in the court there last spring of a criminal assault upon Bertha Simpson, white, the 15-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Simpson, near Trappe, and sentenced to be hanged.

His counsel, Col. J. C. Mullikin, of Easton, and Eugene O'Dunne, of Baltimore, took an appeal to the Court of Appeals of Maryland on the grounds that the jury could not render a just verdict in the case for fear of mob violence. The Court of Appeals sent it back there to be retried. The counsel for the defense argued for its removal to some other place for fear of another attempt at mob law and the court, with Judges Adkins, Hooper and Wickes on the bench, sent the case out of the Second Judicial district to Baltimore county for retrial.

Naval Traveling Recruiting Parties

Lieut-Commander P. V. H. Weems, Maryland Recruiting Officer, is sending out to different parts of the State four traveling recruiting parties and he himself started out last Friday on an inspection trip, making an intensive drive for recruits before the Christmas holidays. As an incentive to the prospective recruits, Commander Weems is giving them leave extending over the holidays, providing they enlist now, the recruits to receive pay while on this leave.

Lieut. C. B. Dushane, Naval Aviator, is in charge of the traveling recruiting party in the Georges Creek mining district and hopes to enlist several more of the dissatisfied miners. Lieut. Dushane is making a drive for aviation recruits. By March the Navy Department hopes to have all of the Navy Aviation Stations filled, and as a result it will then be very difficult to get in this branch of the Navy.

Masons Pay Honor To Mr. Seipp

Mr. Warren S. Seipp, who has retired as grand lecturer of the Masonic Order in Maryland to accept the post of vice-president of the Title Trust and Guaranty Company, Baltimore, was last Tuesday night the guest of 1,000 fellow-Masons at a dinner in the Lyric. He was also presented a magnificent silver pitcher and tray that cost $1,000, in acknowledgment of which, as well as of the honors paid him, Mr. Seipp made a speech that brought rounds of applause.

The dinner was one of the most largely attended affairs of its kind ever held in that city. It was arranged by Allen B. Lockhart, Charles C. Homer, Grand Master of Masons in Maryland, was chairman of the general committee and presided. Judge Frank L. Duncan, who is a member of Mt. Moriah Lodge, of which Mr. Seipp is also a member, was toastmaster.

BIG MONEY FROM MUSKRAT PELTS

Eastern Shore Hunters Expecting Large Income From Muskrat

Trappers and hunters of muskrats on the Eastern Shore are expecting to reap big money this year from the pelts of the little animals, aside from the meat, which is constantly growing in favor. Each pelt is expected to be sold for $2.00. Twenty years ago the prevailing price was 25 cents each. Because of the profits from the fur and meat of the animals, which live in the marshes, these marshes bring far larger rentals than tillable land.

The most extensive marshes where the muskrat thrives are in Dorchester, Wicomico and Somerset counties. In these counties the trapping industry is beginning with great energy because of the extraordinary demand for the pelts of the little rodents. Here is portrayal of the rise of the industry as related by Wm. A. Gibbs, a successful trapper in Church Creek district of Dorchester county. In 1913 Mr. Gibbs purchased 500 acres of marsh land and went into the business of conducting on a large scale and in a scientific way a muskrat farm. When he first embarked in this novel enterprise his prime object was to obtain a sporting place where he could shoot ducks, wild geese and the other birds which abound in that section.

The muskrat end of the enterprise was looked upon as a side line, the profits of which he hoped would pay the expense of maintaining the place, but since getting under way Mr. Gibbs has made the muskrat end of the business the principal feature and has expended freely in the experiment his time, his money and his talent for things mechanical. In addition he has called into play his business training and ability and has kept an accurate account of everything that has been done, of the increase in rats, of the depredations of hawks, owls and varmints, and has data enough to fill a book.

A count of rathouses showed just 500 families, or one to every acre. He set to work, proceeding on the theory that the rats would multiply if given food, water and protection. A record was kept by driving a stake in each house and counting the stakes so used. The marsh was not trapped the following spring and in December 1914, the count of stakes showed 2,000 houses; the third year, 5,500; the fourth 6,500, and this year, 5,400.

Trapping was not begun until 1916, when 2,800 rats were taken. In 1917 the catch was 4,200 and in 1918 about 2,000. The reason for the great falling off the past season was that the place was overtrapped a year ago and that this season a hard freeze setting in in December caused a heavy mortality among the rats, amounting, in Mr. Gibbs' opinion, to 20 per cent. of the population of his little city. Another even more potent cause was the fact that the freeze made trapping difficult in January, when, ordinarily, most rats are taken because of the fact that then they have established places of abode and beaten paths to follow. When spring opens and the mating season arrives they are less regular in their modes of life and less easy to trap.

Muskrats are now sold extensively for food in a number of markets of the East and Middle West. In the retail markets of Baltimore, Philadelphia, Wilmington and other cities they are often sold under the name of "marsh rabbits," but no attempt is made to conceal the fact that they are muskrats. They are bought and eaten by both well-to-do people and by the poorer classes, who can seldom indulge in high-priced game.

To Repeal Primary Election Law

Senator Omar D. Crothers, of Cecil county, while in Baltimore last Thursday, said that he would introduce a bill to repeal the direct primary election law. As a substitute he will propose that delegates to nomination convention be elected on the basis of the voting population of each party. "We would adhere to the Democratic and popular idea," said Mr. Crothers, "by electing, to illustrate, one delegate for each 100 voters. These delegates would be elected to county and city legislative district conventions. The county and district conventions would elect delegates to the state convention in addition to making such nominations as are necessary."

Senator Crothers is convinced that the direct primary election law has proved to be a failure. Not only in Baltimore, but in the counties, in several of which it was practically ignored this year, candidates being selected at so-called harmony meetings to which delegates were chosen at district meetings.

WILSON'S MESSAGE TO CONGRESS

Appeals For Legislation To Restore Business To Peacetime Status

President Wilson in his message to Congress last Tuesday renewed with all his strength his appeal for a legislative program to restore a peace-time business status, revise the tax system, curb unrest, reduce the cost of living and rectify labor and farming conditions. This message recommended:

Establishment of a national budget system.

Simplification of income and excess profits taxes.

Legislation to secure employment and land for service men.

Laws to encourage increased crop production.

Protection for America's new chemical and dyestuffs industry.

Federal aid in the building of good roads.

Development of forest resources.

Enactment of Attorney General Palmer's legislation for dealing with the Reds.

Legislation to reduce the cost of living and extension of the Lever Act.

Laws to bring about democratization of industry, including participation of workers in decisions affecting their welfare.

Establishment of the principles regarding labor laid down in the league of nations.

The message dealt almost solely with the pressing domestic problems confronting the government and the nation. Only passing reference was made to the failure of the Senate to ratify the treaty of peace with Germany. He attributed much of the restlessness now rampant throughout the country to the disheartening delays in arriving at peace and referred to the League of Nations in his references to improving the condition of labor. Further than that he did not go in any discussion of peace issues.

Presumably this great question is being reserved until another time, as is the question of returning the railroads to their owners. In his opening observations he said "that the matter of the railroads and the readjustment of their affairs 'growing out of Federal control' would be the subject of a later message to Congress. The matter of peace, including the negotiated treaty, the amended League of Nations covenant and the Lodge resolution declaring that Germany and the United States are no longer at war, will be left in suspense until some future date.

Meantime the President feels that Congress should give its earnest and immediate attention to the problems which are pressing upon the Nation for an answer. He wants legislation which will curb the "passion and malevolence tending to incite crimes and insurrection under the guise of political evolution," while at the same time safeguarding the right of free expression of opinion and the advocacy of orderly political change.

This legislation already has been recommended to Congress by the Attorney General, the President reminds the House and Senate, and he states that it should be passed at the earliest possible moment if protection is to be given to the "time-tested institutions" now being assailed and which soon may be undermined.

It is in this connection that the President vigorously urged Congress to deal further with the high cost of living. He cites the fact that only one of the recommendations which he made to the extra session for the control of prices and of food distribution has been passed and for that reason, he says, the Government's campaign has not been as effective as otherwise would have been the case. He feels that the Food Control act should be extended six months after the proclamation of peace instead of being allowed to expire by limitation when that proclamation is issued. Otherwise, he says, the machinery of the Department of Justice for the protection of the consuming public may become suddenly useless and at a time when it should be working with the greatest effect.

Game Farm Gets Pheasants

The State Game Propagation Farm at Owings Mills, Md., is being stocked with ringneck pheasants, which will be used for breeding purposes only. The offspring will form the first flock of birds to be liberated from the new reservation.

Thirty-seven fine specimens were in the first consignment to arrive and they have been placed in the first holding pen. The birds were raised from 100 eggs turned over to A. W. Brown, superintendent of Druid Ridge Cemetery, Pikesville. Upon arrival at the farm, the wings of the pheasants were clipped as an additional safeguard against their leaving the place.

Another consignment of 107 pheasants soon will be taken to the farm. They were received from Oregon by the State Game Department and are being cared for by Charles Adams, Catonsville, Md.

FLAT ROOFS FOR HOT LANDS

American Indian Desert Dwellers Knew Secret of Home Building We Seem to Have Forgotten.

We dwell with Colonel Roosevelt upon the historic and cultural value of the ancient Indian towns of Arizona which, had they been in Europe, would doubtless have been preserved unchanged as living records of successful, communistic forms of government, whose social and ceremonial life offered a study of the greatest possible importance to our knowledge of mankind as a whole. And we asked: What right have we in "free America" to stretch forth an autocratic hand arbitrarily to change the village life of this ancient and peaceful folk?

We spoke of the characteristic architecture of the pueblos, by many centuries the oldest inhabited towns in America, whose flat-roofed, terraced houses are not only in utter harmony with natural surroundings, but constitute, from a practical standpoint, the most successful type of building for desert cities. High above the sands, the flat roof forms a porch for the open-air Indian, whereon at certain seasons he works, rests, receives his guests, eats, and sleeps.

In North Africa, in Spain, in Asia Minor, where climatic conditions are similar to those in Hopi Land, the same flat roof may be found. But we think we know better! In a land of burning sun, the slanting, hot, tin roofs of the government dwellings clinging in an inherited architecture of rain-soaked central Europe, cut their incongruous outline against a rainless sky, impotent in their longing to shed water! And the sun streamed into their big European windows, inviting myriads of flies, and forming a contrast indeed to the shadowed cool of the thick-walled Indian houses, whose open fireplaces insured at all seasons wholesome ventilation, in spite of high, narrow windows.

And yet the white man's impractical transplanted house, brought from far other climes, is urged upon the Indians as "civilized." With no eye to either beauty or fitness, our arbitrary standards (rarely, in the Indians' case, put to the test of experimentation first) are forced upon a people who through centuries of experience have learned how to conquer conditions foreign to us. Improvements there might certainly be in the Indian's manner of life, but why not along those lines which nature has taught as most appropriate?—Natalie Curtis, in the Outlook.

The Attractive City.

In a word, then, so far as I am personally concerned, you will not make your city more attractive to me by buildings, parks or monuments—what other city has not these things? But if you can show the heart that I know is in your breast, if you can forget to look straight ahead in order to cast a look of friendly interest on a passing stranger, if you can cease to fear being "done" and become inspired by the desire once in a while to show that you are a human being amidst your bricks and stones, just to that extent will you do your part in making your city attractive. Oil may draw money to Tulsa; social exclusiveness will always make Newport and Palm Beach desirable to a limited number; the palaces of Pasadena will attract other millionaires there. But you'll prefer smoky old Pittsburgh or noisy Kansas City, or St. Joseph, or any other city that shows its heart beneath the grime and takes the lid off its smile.—J. Breckenridge Ellis in the Twilight Hour Magazine.

Removing Warts From the Face.

One of the difficult disfiguring things to get rid of is the eruption of many small warts on the face. The British Medical Journal tells how Dr. Charles Ind has succeeded in eradicating them. He paints the warts three times in one day with a saturated solution of salicylic acid in alcohol and the following morning he cuts them off with a flat sharp steel instrument, beveled on one side only. This is painless, but it leaves a tiny bleeding point at the site of the wart. This he immediately paints again with the salicylic acid solution, which is applied twice again the same day. On the second morning the sites of the warts have small brown scabs, which are bathed once a day with pure alcohol till they drop off, leaving a healthy skin.

New Electric Lamp.

An electrical lamp has been developed in Europe which virtually consists of a metallic arc inside of a sealed bulb containing attenuated helium and neon gases. The wire anode terminates so closely to the edge of the hemispherical iron cathode that the current discharges across the gap spontaneously. The rays have an orange hue and are only slightly actinic, making the lamp useful in photographic dark rooms. It is also recommended for use in mines, and other places where inflammable gases may be present, because breaking of the bulb instantly extinguishes the light.

Its Advantage.

"The automobile has one big advantage over a horse."
"What is that?"
"It can be tired without wanting to stop."

Home Brew.

"Come on up to the house for dinner and we'll give you some good home-made bread."
"You have some good homemade beer, too, I suppose?"

Brunswick Principles In Fine Tire Making

The reason you are interested in the name on your tire is that it identifies the maker. By knowing the maker you can judge his ideals of manufacture.

The only secret of a super-tire lies in the principles of the maker. His standards decide the quality. For there are no secrets in the tire industry.

What you get depends on what is behind the name on your tire. Brunswick, as you know, means a very old concern, jealous of its good name. Since 1845 the House of Brunswick has been famous the world over for the quality of its products.

The Brunswick Tire is all that you expect—and more. Your first one will be a revelation. You'll agree that you've never known a better. And you'll tell your friends. So spreads the news among motorists. The Brunswick is the most welcome tire that ever came to market.

Try one Brunswick Tire. Learn how good a tire can be built. And remember, it costs no more than like-type tires.

Elam K. Woodoth Wants Your Holly, Wreaths and Mistletoe

He wanted it last year, and got it, and it is a matter of record that he paid more money to the shippers than any other man in the business. The past fifteen years he has been receiving Holly Wreaths, Box Holly and other greens from this section and invariably has paid the shippers more money than any other firm in the business.

If you want any information, ask him; he will tell you, and tell you the truth. When he says, "Don't ship any Greens before the 5th or 6th of December," he knows what he is talking about. The Railroad Company will not allow the goods to remain in the depot, and as there is no trade for Greens before December 10th, why ship them until it is time for them to be sold.

Prices were high last year, but all indications point to higher prices this year, and Mr. Woodoth is the man to get the high prices for the shippers.

Quite a few jobbers will be around to see you and want to buy your Wreaths, or whatever you have to sell, but if you are wise you will stick to the Old Reliable Merchant who has always made good. When the time comes, which is December 5th or 6th, start all your shipments to

NO KNOWN CURE FOR BLACKHEAD

Ailment Caused by Parasite, and Is Characterized by Great Sores in Caeca.

PREVENTIVE MEASURES BEST

On Farms Where an Outbreak Has Occurred All Birds Not Affected Should Be Sold for Meat—Disinfect Premises.

Blackhead in turkeys is caused by a parasite and is characterized by great sores in the caeca (blind intestines) and liver. This microscopic parasite causes irritations, destruction of the tissues, and nearly always the death of the affected turkeys.

The characteristic symptoms of the disease are as follows: The loss of appetite and tendency of affected birds to stand apart from the rest of the flock is common. When the intestines are severely affected the birds have diarrhea and the droppings are liquid and stained orange yellow; this is a characteristic symptom. Diseased birds are frequently found dead under the roosts.

Means of Diagnosis.

The only sure means of diagnosis, however, is by post-mortem examination of a bird that has recently died. The bird should be cut open to expose the internal organs, and the liver and caeca examined. The presence of large sores in the substance of the liver and the caecal walls is sufficient evidence for a diagnosis. The caecal sores may vary from a single point to a large scab covering nearly all the lining of both caeca. The liver is very much enlarged and the sores on it are two-fifths to three-fifths of an inch in diameter.

At the present time there is no known cure for this disease and the only means by which it can be controlled is by preventive measures. On farms where an outbreak has occurred, all the turkeys which have not come down with the disease should be marketed for meat and not sold for breeding. Nor should eggs from an infected flock be used for hatching. It would be well not to attempt to restock a farm with turkeys for several months; and not until a thorough disinfection of the premises has been made, by exposing the ground to the hot summer sun and by the liberal use of freshly slaked lime in the poultry houses, roosting places, and feeding pens.

Make Fresh Start.

A fresh start may be made by hatching turkey eggs under hens, or Healthy and Vigorous Tom.

by obtaining fresh breeding stock from a non-infected district.

It is recommended that turkey raising be conducted on dry, sandy, well-drained lands, since blackhead seems to be prevented in large part by dryness of the surroundings.

IMPROVEMENT OF CORN CROP

Little Extra Care in Selecting, Curing and Testing Seed Will Increase Net Profit.

Extra care in selecting, curing, testing and grading the seed corn will do much to improve the stand and yield of corn, thus saving labor, reducing cost per bushel and increasing net profit per bushel. It requires the same labor to manure, to plow, to disk, to harrow, to plant and to cultivate a 40 per cent stand as is required for an 80 per cent or a 100 per cent stand.

KEEP EVERY TOOL IN PLACE

Practice of Keeping Bolts and Screws of All Kinds Mixed Together Is Not Good Plan.

Farm tools and materials should be kept in their proper places. If they all haven't a place, one should be provided for each. Do not keep all sizes of bolts and screws mixed together in a single receptacle, but fit up suitable boxes or bins, properly marked, so that the supplies may be accessible on short notice.

OPERATION OF DISK PLOWS

Better Work in Hard Soils When Sharp—Have Narrow Carriage in Working in Orchard.

A sharp disk plow insures good work in hard soils and rolls better. Self-lift disk plows save labor and do better work. For work in the orchard, disk plows should have a narrow carriage, and the operating levers should be low so as not to catch limbs of the trees.

TUESDAY MORNING, DEC. 9, 1919

A lot of the 'High Cost of Living' is simply the high cost of loafing.

You don't hear the merchants that advertise making complaint of the failure of the public to buy early.

The coal miners and operators will be considerably assisted in keeping warm this winter by the cussing of the public.

Formerly the society reporter had to write up what the women wore and now they have to describe what they don't wear.

A lot of people will observe Thrift Week, Jan. 17th to 24th, by beginning to save money to blow in for an automobile next spring.

The Congressmen have returned to Washington confident that they can prevent anything being done before the holiday recess.

These excitable coal miners who won't arbitrate will have abundant chance to cool off before the groundhog makes his annual observations.

One of these days the greasy Mexicans will find out that Americans do not go down to that country for the express purpose of serving as doormats and cuspidors.

So far no sympathy has been expressed for people whose property depreciates because they and a lot of other folks have sent money out of town to mail order trade.

These are times when you can hardly pass along the street carrying a bottle of distilled water for your automobile batteries without attracting the envious curiosity of the thirsty.

What shall be done with the fellows who are hoarding sugar in anticipation of higher prices? O, well, put 'em in jail for 90 days, and feed 'em entirely on fudge and molasses candy.

It is said that many government employees, dissatisfied with the low salaries paid, are leaving their jobs. They should thoughtfully reflect that now they will have to go to work.

SUGAR HOARDERS

Conditions in the sugar trade continue a subject of some mystery and millions of Americans want a better explanation of the reasons for the present famine. The short supply of this necessary of life has been a most burdensome inconvenience and has interfered with the nourishment of the people.

The charge is constantly repeated that the reason for the shortage is that large quantities of sugar are being held back for higher prices expected to prevail when government restrictions are removed. Now it is quite possible that prices will have to go higher in order to encourage the production of a sufficient supply.

A large part of the world's stock used to come from Russia, Austria and Germany. These countries will be disorganized for years. The shortage from these fields will have to be made up elsewhere. The price will have to be sufficient to make it worth while to produce this crop in sufficient volume.

But so long as the price of sugar is controlled, it is the patriotic duty of everyone holding sugar to co-operate with the government and abide loyally by whatever decision the government makes in regard to price. Holding sugar out of the market will create the greatest indignation against anyone guilty of it.

THE LEGION GETTING BUSY

One recent incident of the work of the American Legion was the stopping of a German play at Newark, N. J. All over the country the Legion is fighting the Red menace. It will find plenty of work to do along many such lines.

As respects to German plays, as long as German is permitted to be taught in schools some plays in that language will no doubt be presented. The majority of those usually given are cleverly concealed propaganda and such performances need careful restriction.

This country has long needed some active force working for patriotic ideals. The soldiers of the Civil War supplied that force for many years. The task is far too great for those who are left. There has been too much "Let George do it," in American patriotism. The American Legion promises to supply a positive energy that has long been needed.

Mr. Clement Gaekill, of Cape Charles, assistant trainmaster of the N. Y. & P. & N. R. R., was badly wounded in the leg while gunning near Makemie Park, on Monday of last week, when a friend's gun was accidentally discharged by a twig that touched the trigger.

These tablets are intended especially for indigestion and constipation. They tone up the stomach and enable it to perform its functions naturally. They act gently on the liver and bowels, thereby restoring the stomach and bowels to a healthy condition. When you feel dull, stupid and constipated give them a trial. Troublesome Mexico

The United States is on the verge of war with Mexico. It looks very much like that unfortunate country is trying to get into a war with us although they know to a certainty that we can wipe them off the face of the earth. But President Carranza has had so much trouble with his Villa and other rebels that he is on the verge of collapse and is evidently seeking a way out of failure by getting into a squabble with the United States and then appealing to all Mexicans to stand together for their country.

Should Be Quarantined.

Many physicians believe that anyone who has a bad cold should be completely isolated to prevent other members of the family and associates from contracting the disease, as colds are about as catching as measles. One thing sure—the sooner one rids himself of a cold the less the danger, and you will look a good while before you find a better medicine than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to aid you in curing a cold.

PUREBRED SIRE ON EVERY FARM

There is No Longer Any Place for Inferior Bull in Any American Herd.

FINE PROFIT FOR PRODUCER

Steers Sired by Purebred Bulls Bring Top Prices at Chicago and Omaha Markets on Account of Good Quality and Size.

(By FRANK D. TOMSON.)

Whenever the producer of scrub or inferior stock comes into competition with the producer of purebred or high grade stock he loses. Every day at every beef market the lesson of good breeding is taught and the man who has stayed with the scrub bull pays a high tuition for his schooling. There is no longer any place for the inferior bull on the American farm. The prevailing costs are prohibitive. On the other hand the prospects for the producer of the higher standards of both beef and dairy cattle were never so bright.

Many a load of steers has been sold during the past year on the several leading markets for $250 to $524 per head. It is easy to see that the producers of such steers had a fine profit coming if they carried them through to the marketing date. It is certain that no matter when they disposed of them they were assured of a profit for it is such that attract the feeder. It will be understood that good breeding and good feeding were the basis of these high prices. The steers were by purebred sires and their dams in many cases were by purebred sires.

Purebred Sire Responsible.

It is a long list of shipments that have gone from the feedlots of Iowa, Nebraska, Dakota, Kansas, Missouri, Illinois, Wisconsin, Kentucky, Indiana and other states and brought their owners around $300 per head. But the purebred sire was back of each shipment and was the primary cause of the lucrative prices. Out in Montana a ranchman decided to use purebred Shorthorn bulls on his range cows and when two carloads of the steers by them went to the Chicago market they carried two important things—extra weight and quality. They attracted the buyers and sold for $18 per hundredweight, the record for rangebred steers. Another well-known ranchman Prize-Winning Shorthorn Yearlings.

In Wyoming followed the same practice and when his red and roan steers went to the Omaha market they weighed the average of the three-year-olds off the same range. Why?—because they were sired by purebred bulls of a breed that transmitted size and quality.

Two well-known feeders in Wisconsin finished a load of steers by Shorthorn bulls and sold them on the Chicago market last summer and received $18.35 per hundredweight. They had both size and quality. No such result would have been possible either in this or the several cases referred to above with bulls of an inferior standard.

Most Useful Movement.

There is now spreading over this country a movement to place purebred sires on the farms in the place of the grade or scrub sires now in use. It is one of the most useful movements ever undertaken. Particularly in Wisconsin the movement being actively pushed. The results so far are very assuring and with any considerable degree of success in the distribution of the purebred sires an addition to the wealth of the Wisconsin stock farmers will be made that will be beyond computation.

This movement will gradually spread over the entire country and our livestock will then yield an adequate return for the high priced feed and labor and land that are required in their maintenance.

GERMINATION TEST OF CORN

Necessary to Keep Seed Ears in Well-Ventilated Place—Artificial Heat Is Beneficial.

Tests in caring for seed corn at the Ohio station, show that corn giving the best germination tests in the spring is that which has been dried out well in the fall and to which some artificial heat has been applied.

It is necessary to keep the corn well ventilated, which may be accomplished by suspending the ears from a wire in a shed or attic; or the ears may be placed in a sling between two strings so that they do not touch each other. If the corn is thoroughly dried before freezing weather the germination test generally proves satisfactory in the spring.

As It Seems

The Road—In New Overland 4 on Three-Point Cantilever Springs

YOU expect a bad road to ride as it looks. It did, until the introduction of the Overland 4 Springbase.

Overland 4 does not change the road, but it does change the manner in which you can ride on it. It gives you comfort instead of discomfort. It gives you a smooth, sailing sensation instead of bouncing and swaying.

The Diagonal attachment of Three-Point Cantilever Springs at the ends of a 130-inch Springbase gives long wheelbase and steadiness. Yet Overland 4 retains all the advantages—lightness, economy, and ease of handling, of 100-inch wheelbase.

This means an altogether new standard of riding comfort, a noteworthy reduction in the wear and tear which lessens the efficiency of a car. The new springs give longer life to every part and thus minimize upkeep and replacement costs.

Tires wear longer because cushioned against hammering blows. Light weight means marked economy in gas, oil and running expense.

Overland 4's equipment is complete from Auto-Lite Starting and Lighting to Demountable Rims.

Come in and see this remarkable car. Ask for booklet. Overland 4 Touring, $845; Roadster, $845; Coupe, $1325; Sedan, $1375. Prices f. o. b. Toledo.

BACK TO NATURE

Agricultural Department Renews Faith in Old Maxims.

Experts Have Come to the Conclusion That There Is Much More Than Superstition in "Signs" Our Forefathers Noted.

The problem of making agricultural superstitions into agricultural data is being studied by experts of the department of agriculture, who declare that many old maxims handed down from father to son for generations are not really superstitions at all, but helpful information discovered by keenly observant persons.

Everybody has heard some of the old maxims. They deal with every variety of agricultural operation. Bean planting, for instance, never was done by the forefathers of the present generation at the time of the blossoming of the blackberry bushes. When the catkins had formed on maple trees it was a sign from nature that early gardening might commence. And toward the close of the season warning of frost was given by the maturing of cockleburrs.

Now the department of agriculture declares that there is a best time for every farm and garden operation, and that some tree or shrub or plant indicates that time more accurately than all the scientific instruments can register it. It is those signs which were noted by the pioneers who laid the foundation of this country and recorded in the simple sayings handed down to posterity. Soon they will be dignified with the scientific name of "phenology," which is the science of phenomena.

Collection of natural signs into the science of phenology probably was begun with a campaign against the Hessian fly. Experts were endeavoring to determine the best time for planting wheat so that the sowing would be late enough to prevent ruin by the pest and yet early enough for the grain to get a start before cold weather.

It was easy enough to work out the general rule that the season varies four days for each one degree of latitude, five degrees of longitude and 400 feet of altitude, but as no two seasons are just the same the rule could tell only approximately when the farmer should do his sowing.

In seeking for a more exact guide, Dr. A. D. Hopkins of the department forsook the cold realm of scientific formulae for "back-to-nature" information. As plants respond to climatic conditions and not to dates, it was decided that some natural indication would give the information desired.

It is now claimed that observation has proved that the best time for sowing wheat is that period between the full blooming of tall late goldenrod and the time when the white, common Japanese clematis flowers are nearly all gone or the leaves are distinctly colored on the dogwood and hickories.

What has been done for wheat will be done for other crops, but the working out of the signs will be a slow process. Meanwhile every farmer and even the city gardener have their own guides at hand, if they have eyes to see. Thus has the superstition and folklore of days called primitive been justified by the advanced science of the twentieth century.

Dangers of City Streets.

Apparently the time is not ripe for the solution of the problem created by excessive speed in driving motor cars, although the mortality is truly termed terrifying. The annual toll in the city of New York alone of dead and wounded far surpasses some of the casualty totals of the Civil war. In Cincinnati since January 1 there have been forty-eight fatalities. Satirical humorists have laughingly said that a city resident who succeeds in safely crossing a car crowded thoroughfare should not thereby become unduly exalted, because he has gained only a reprieve, and in the end surely will be run down. It is appalling to think that the mere journey from one side of a street to another in municipalities is really dangerous and that a risk of life and limb is taken by the pedestrian.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Puzzle Over Musk's Loss of Scent.

For many years now, the remark has gone the rounds among flower lovers that it is next to impossible to get a sweet-scented musk. More than one grumble at the nurserymen for raising the larger flowered and scentless variety, but now it turns out that the nurserymen are blameless in the matter. The musk has deliberately lost its scent; that is the plain fact, and nobody knows the wherefore of this strange occurrence. The Field calls attention to the fact, and says that no other case of the kind has been recorded. It adds that old colonies of the musk plant which were powerfully fragrant have now become quite odorless. Kew, it appears, is as puzzled as anyone over it.

He Knew Who Hired Him.

The jury was evidently getting on the judge's nerves, and at last he announced:

"I discharge the jury!"

A tall, lean member of the 12 then rose.

"Say, judge, you can't discharge me!"

"Can't discharge you? Why not?" thundered the judge.

"Waal," replied the jurymen, pointing to counsel for the defense, "I was hired by that guy over there!"

OLD AGE STARTS WITH YOUR KIDNEYS

Science says that old age begins with weakened kidneys and digestive organs. This being true, it is easy to believe that by keeping the kidneys and digestive organs cleansed and in proper working order old age can be deferred and life prolonged far beyond that enjoyed by the average person.

For over 200 years GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil has been relieving the weaknesses and disability due to advancing years. It is a standard old-time home remedy and needs no introduction. GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil is enclosed in odorless, tasteless capsules containing about 5 drops each. Take them as you would a pill, with a small swallow of water. The oil stimulates the kidney action and enables the organs to throw off the poisons which cause premature old age. New life and strength increase as you continue the treatment. When completely restored continue taking a capsule or two each day. GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules will keep you in health and vigor and prevent a return of the disease. Do not wait until old age or disease have settled down for good. Go to your druggist and get a box of GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. Money refunded if they do not help you. Three sizes. But remember to ask for the original imported GOLD MEDAL brand. In sealed packages.

STEEL MASTER BEGAN TO SAVE WHEN YOUNG

Recognized That Success Lay in Sound Investment—Safest Security in World Is Now Offered By Government.

Andrew Carnegie died not long ago, leaving behind him $30,000,000. He had given away about $300,000,000 in an effort to avoid the reproach of being rich.

It is probable that the high cost of living gave the "steel master" little worry during the latter half of his life, but it is certain that in his boyhood the prices of the necessities of life were vital factors. And Andrew Carnegie in his early years met the cost of living with the same remedy which America's leaders, headed by President Wilson, are now putting forth as the basic principle of the fight to withstand the menace that lurks in the soaring prices of today. That remedy is thrift—the practice of saving, the elimination of waste and sound investment.

In the days when Andrew Carnegie, 14 years old, earned $1.20 a week as a hobbler boy in an Allegheny City cotton mill, and later when he earned $1.25 a month as a telegraph messenger boy, the cost of living meant much to him. He had little margin for saving. But he did save. There were few opportunities for the small saver to make safe investments. Securities were not issued in small denominations. There were no Thrift Stamps or War Savings Stamps, backed by the government, into which the meager proceeds of the Scotch boy's thrift could be converted.

But Andrew Carnegie at the age of 20 determined upon safe investment. The soundest securities that offered were 10 shares of stock in an express company worth $600. Carnegie had to borrow part of the money he paid. But he was convinced that savings lying idle were not performing their proper function.

The American man or woman, boy or girl of today does not have to borrow to add to the savings fund in order to find safe investment. The government makes sound security in the form of Savings Stamps, Treasury Savings Certificates, and war bonds available to every saver who will begin to practice thrift by the regular investment of sums as small as 25 cents.

Every American today has a better opportunity for success than lay before Andrew Carnegie when he faced a world.

NOW AND THEN

What is a dollar? Foolish question—you say? Not at all these days of H. C. L. and profiteering. Certainly a dollar isn't what it was ten years ago. It isn't what it will be five years from now.

A dollar is what you can get for it in beans, butterfies or bunk—no more, no less. A dollar wouldn't be worth anything if you couldn't get anything for it.

Ten years ago you bought, say, bunk at one dollar a portion. Now bunk costs two dollars. That doesn't mean it has doubled in value. It means that your dollar is worth half what it was ten years ago.

This is, therefore, not the time to spend too many of your dollars. They will bring you only half of what they are worth. This is the time to save them.

They will bring more later on. That is the history of dollars. Values run in cycles. As surely as you live five years a dollar will be worth more than it is now. Maybe twice as much. So when you save a dollar now you are perhaps saving two dollars. Treat dollars as you would any other commodity. Buy them when they are cheap.

Stick every dollar you can into War Savings Stamps. Carrying 4 per cent interest compounded quarterly, a War Savings Stamp bought this month for $4.22 will be worth $5 January 1, 1924. By 1924 if the dollar is worth twice as much as it is now you will really have ten dollars for the $4.22.

SAVING GROWS EASIER AS HABIT TAKES HOLD

Young People Must Be Brought to Realization of What Future Means to Those Who Spend Wisely.

It is easier to spend money than it is to save. It is also more fun—at first. But money that is spent does not work for you. It is gone, and is working for somebody else.

It is as hard to make young people realize the necessity of saving as it is to make them realize that they are not always going to be young. It is so easy to be young and reckless.

But habits of thrift have to be taught. They also have to be formed by practice. That means that the rising generation must be taught to capitalize its youth, and in childhood shown how to distribute and allot such income as it may have.

That indeed, is a large part of civilization. The savage lives today. The civilized man lives today with an eye upon tomorrow. In order that tomorrow may be as secure as today he saves some of today's goods for tomorrow's use.

The war taught many people how to save; it taught other people how to spend. The wise spender is the wise saver, but the emphasis is on the "wise" and not on the "spending."

Education in thrift is an education in good citizenship and in good morals. The person who is being taught to save is also being taught to forecast the future and to make tomorrow better because of wise living today.

The government of the United States is offering to men, women and children the opportunity to invest savings in safe and profitable securities.

ARE YOU A CAPITALIST?

The dictionary defines a "capitalist" as one who has a "pecuniary surplus." The dictionary is wrong. A capitalist is one who has a pecuniary surplus "which is invested."

Are you a capitalist?

You are if you are buying War Savings Stamps or Treasury Savings Certificates. They represent "pecuniary surplus" or, in simple English, "savings," and they make your money work by bringing to you 4 per cent interest, compounded quarterly.

Are you a capitalist?

Secretary of Commerce Redfield recently said to the Cleveland advertising men: "There are 64,000,000 subscribers to our Liberty Loans. I suspect that many a factory is manned, as I know some government services are, by a force from top to bottom of capitalists, in varying degrees, but not the less really."

Don't kick about the high cost of living. Beat it by trimming your sails and buying War Savings Stamps. The capitalists are not kicking about the high cost of living.

Why?

Because they have money at work. Cut your expenses to the bone. Invest in War Savings Stamps. Be a capitalist.

SCOTCH SONGS TO DATE

If a body meet a body
Coming through the rye;
If a body save a dollar
Why, then, bye and bye.
When the shiftless people holler
"Money's Scarce and tight!"
He who saves the nimble dollar,
Will come through all right!

Should auld acquaintance be forgot
And never come to mind?
Why, no!—unless he is a sot
And better left behind.
But one thing you must not forget,
A thing more true than funny:
"When your mind on saving's set It's easy saving money!"

Knowing War Savings Stamps are a good investment won't do you any good unless you back up the knowledge with your money.

Follow the example of rich men if you would be rich. They make their money work for them. You can do it by buying War Savings Stamps.

RED CROSS CHRISTMAS SEALS SAVE KIDDIES

Boys and Girls Gain Health At Maryland Tuberculosis Association's Preventorium At Claiborne.

Betty is a frail, big-eyed little girl of 7 years. Her father is a patient at a tuberculosis hospital and her mother "since Daddy went away" has to work all day in a factory to keep Betty and her two baby brothers, Tom, aged 5 1/2, and Jerome, who is 4, from going hungry to bed.

Last summer, Betty, leading Tom and Jerome by the hands, arrived at Claiborne on the ferry from Annapolis and pretty soon the three of them were joining in a group of merry youngsters playing "mulberry bush" on the sandy beach of Eastern Bay. The trio were among the patients who during the past months have enjoyed the benefits of the preventorium operated by the Maryland Tuberculosis Association at the Claiborne Cottages. Twenty children have been treated at the cottages and all of them have shown marked improvement.

The preventorium was opened several months ago as a place where children from 4 to 12, boys and girls from all parts of the state, who had been seriously exposed to or were, for varying reasons pre-disposed to tuberculosis, or suffering from mal-nutrition or chorea, could live practically out of doors and get the treatment needed to prevent the threatened development of tuberculosis.

So very successful has been the experiment that it is hoped to make the Claiborne Cottages a permanent part of the work of the Maryland Tuberculosis Association. The cottages have closed because there is no fund to keep them opened longer. The work of the Maryland Tuberculosis Association, like that of all the 1000 affiliated organizations of the National Tuberculosis Association, depends largely for its financial support on the sale of the Red Cross Christmas seals. This year the seals were ready for distribution on December 1. Throughout the entire country an intensive campaign to show the menace of the disease, that yearly takes a death toll in the United States more than three times as great as the number of lives lost by the American armies on the battlefields of Europe, is under way.

To finance this fight, more than a half billion of the Little Red Cross Christmas seals must be sold. Maryland's quota is $125,000 worth of the seals. This will enable the state to carry on and develop its work and to provide for the operation of the Claiborne Preventorium all the year round. At present there is no place, where Maryland children can be given their chance to win back the health lost through no fault of their own.

Every seal is a penny's worth of prevention and cure. The stamps this year are unusually pretty, done in three colors, and are Christmasy. The officers of the Maryland Tuberculosis Association, which will be in general charge of the seal sale in Maryland are: Dr. Henry Barton Jacobs, president; George A. Colston, treasurer; Joseph S. Ames, secretary; A. E. Sinks, executive secretary, and Arthur Elmt Hungerford, campaign director.

Co-operating in the organization of the work are the local tuberculosis associations of Allegany, Anne Arundel, Carroll, Dorchester, Frederick, Garrett, Harford, Howard, Kent, Montgomery, Queen Anne, Somerset, Washington, Wilcomco, Prince George, Cecil, Charles and Caroline counties.

In Talbot, Baltimore, St. Mary's, Worcester and Calvert, in which there are no permanent organizations, volunteer committees are being formed to put over this special piece of work.

In the state last year, 2,914 persons died needlessly of tuberculosis. The tuberculosis death rate in Maryland is 44 per cent higher than the average death rate from the disease in the country as a whole. The record is not one of Maryland to be proud of. It can be reduced by educational and preventive work. Every seal will help.

CLUB MEMBERS RECEIVE CHECKS

Most Popular Form Of Saving Offered By Local Banks

The members of the Christmas Savings Clubs of the Peoples Bank of Somerset County, and the Bank of Somerset, of Princess Anne, received their checks last week. These little reminders of the fruit of weekly savings through the year are giving instant stimulus to the purchase of gifts and have also stirred thrift, for many of the recipients are back in the banks cashing the checks and enrolling in the club for next year.

During the war the Christmas club savers became to a large extent buyers of Liberty bonds by a similar plan of weekly payments. Now, with bond sales over, the indications are that the number of such members will be greater than ever before.

A large number of people, whether their incomes are large or small, find it difficult to "get ahead" financially. They postpone the time when they will start saving to provide for the rainy day because they never seem to have enough spare money to start a bank account. The Christmas Club is a great benefit to the people in this way, for they don't need any more capital to get started than the first small payments, and, after all, the start is the important thing. The local banks have a number of plans to select from. In the uniform class, one may pay 25 cents, 50 cents or $1.00 weekly, the totals amounting to $12.50, $25.00 and $50.00. Another way is what is known as the progressive class, in which the payment increases every week. Both banks have advertisements in another column telling about their Christmas Savings Club plans.

The volunteer offering in Somerset county to the Roosevelt Memorial Fund was $408.95, as shown by the report of the county treasurer, H. Fillmore Lankford. Roosevelt Memorial membership certificates will be issued to all subscribers.

Limited train service, trains late and overcrowded, slowness in delivery by freight and express, are among some of the lesser evils brought about by the coal strike. To Our Subscribers

Owing to the great scarcity and large increase in the price of newspaper paper—2 to 5 cents per sheet higher than last year—under the conditions, it is impossible for us to issue this paper at the rate of $1.00 per year. Therefore, beginning on January 1st, 1920, the subscription price will be $1.50 a year in advance.

Every subscriber to the Marylander and Herald whose pink address slip is marked "18" or "19" is requested to pay his subscription. If the slip reads January "18" or "19," or February, or March, or any other month in the years 1918 or 1919, it means your subscription has expired and you should send that amount by mail or call at this office and settle the same at once.

All subscribers who are in arrears after January 1st, 1920, will be removed from our subscription list as the cost of production makes it necessary to cut down our output to those who pay promptly.

WARNS OF BAN ON TOBACCO

AntiProhibitionists Warn of Charges W. C. T. U. S.

Asserting that it wants to call attention to "the real plan" of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union and its strong-armed partner, the Anti-Saloon League, to obtain a national prohibition of tobacco during the next four years, the Association opposed to National Prohibition, of New York, has issued a statement which says:

"Down in Maryland the women who would deprive the men of the solace bestowed by 'the weed' possibly because 'tobacco smells up the parlor curtains,' or reasons equally vital, have frankly revealed what they are going to do about it. This happened down at Hagerstown, Md., a few days ago, at the National Convention of Farm Women, an organization which is ever responsive to W. C. T. U. influences. The convention came out into the open with a resolution praying for legislation to absolutely prohibit growing of tobacco anywhere in the United States.

"But just as the prohibition fanatics started their propaganda by stating that 'food grains' were being used in war time to make liquor, so the farm women based their initial effort for anti-tobacco legislation upon the ground of food conservation."

Dr. Turpin Dies In Cambridge

Dr. Ferdinand A. Turpin, one of the best known men of the three lower counties of the Eastern Shore of Maryland, died at the Cambridge Hospital on Sunday, the 7th instant, aged about 80 years. His remains were brought to Pocomoke City and interment made on Thursday in the Methodist Protestant Cemetery.

During his early manhood he practiced medicine in Pocomoke City and conducted a drug store. Later he moved to Westover, where he continued to practice his profession and dispense drugs. He had a large practice and did well. Reverses came and he saw his savings dwindle away from him.

Since leaving Westover he resided in several places and a few years ago moved back to Pocomoke City. Disease overtook him and for about two years he had been in poor health. He underwent one or more operations at hospitals but none of them seemed to give him relief. Some weeks ago he became much worse and was removed to the Cambridge Hospital, where death overtook him at the time above named.

W. A. Gillespie State Auditor

The appointment of Wm. A. Gillespie as state auditor, succeeding J. Enos Ray, recently appointed a member of the State Accident Commission, was ratified last Tuesday by the Board of Public Works, at Annapolis. Thomas J. Murray, of Elkton, was promoted to chief assistant, and George H. Dawson, Jr., of Cambridge, second assistant. The board awarded a contract for printing for the 1920 legislature to George T. Melvin, publisher of the Weekly Advertiser, Annapolis. His bid was $17,985, the lowest in some years.

U. S. Treasurer's Report

Some interesting facts are brought out in the annual report of the Treasurer of the United States, John Burke. The receipts of the Treasury were almost half a billion dollars more in 1919 than in 1918. There is in the Treasury two and a half billions in gold. The money in circulation increased by $386,602,549 during the fiscal year, and reached the stupendous total of $5,766,029,973. This is $57.66 for each person, if we call the population 100 million.

BAPTISTS COMPLETE CAMPAIGN

Grand Total Of Recent Drive Will Reach $900,000 Mark

An interesting resume of the Baptist $750,000 campaign, which came to a highly successful termination on Monday of last week. The report stated that of the 92 Baptist churches in the state, 90 of them have contributed to the drive, the other two being compelled to postpone their drives until next month. Sixty-seven of these churches have oversubscribed their quotas and eight others have just reached their quotas, making a total of 75 churches that have at least obtained the amounts asked of them.

The largest amount and the honor church of the state was Eutaw Place Church, Baltimore, which, with a quota of $225,000, raised $270,000, or nearly a third of the entire amount raised in the state. The church which showed the largest percentage of oversubscription was registered by the People's Mission, it being apportioned $500, and raised $8,000. The grand total for the state as a result of the week's drive, after tabulating every subscription that had been received up until late Wednesday afternoon, was $895,678. The few other reports that are yet to be received will likely send that amount to the $900,000 mark.

The following is a partial list of the Baptist churches in the state with the total amount of their subscriptions to the recent campaign:

Annapolis, $9,750; Cambridge, $3,520; Crisfield, $6,040; Easton, $5,092; Havre de Grace, $3,125; Hebron, $500; Hurlock, $1,925; Immanuel, $3,008; Marion, $3,672; Pitts Creek, $4,000; Pocomoke City, $6,600; Princess Anne, $952; Rehoboth, $3,342; Salisbury, $4,000; Vienna, $760.

New Newspaper For Salisbury

Salisbury's newest newspaper, The Wicomico Countain, will make its initial bow to the public on January 3rd next. The Wicomico Publishing Co., which will produce the Countain, filed its papers of incorporation last week through Attorney Hooper S. Miles. The concern is capitalized at $15,000 and its officers are Wm. M. Cooper, president; Jesse D. Price, vice-president; Hooper S. Miles, secretary; Mark Cooper, treasurer and Clarence W. Miles, managing editor.

In the business and editorial management of the paper, Mr. Miles will be assisted by Wm. M. Cooper, who 17 years ago was editor of the Salisbury Advertiser, and by the Hon. Jesse D. Price.

The paper's politics will be Democratic with independent leanings. It will be issued each Saturday morning, and will make its appearance in 12 pages of seven columns each. Clarence W. Miles, the managing editor of the Wicomico Countain, is the son of the late Alonzo L. Miles, and is a graduate of the University of Maryland Law School.

Red Will Be Color Of 1920 War Stamps

Red will be the color of the 1920 War Savings Stamps, according to information received from the United States Treasury Department. The stamps will be larger than those of the 1919 series and will bear the head of George Washington. They will be placed on sale in the postoffices and banks throughout the country on Jan. 1st, the official statement said.

War Savings Stamps were first offered in 1918, that series being green. Those of this year are blue and bear the head of Benjamin Franklin. So far this year the total investment in War Savings Stamps and Thrift Stamps and Treasury Savings certificates in the Fifth Federal Reserve District is about $8,800,000.

Hundreds of savings societies and thrift clubs have been organized in the schools all over the district, and the savings movement, according to reports received, is making rapid headway, and will be vigorously pushed next year without interruption.

The annual meeting of the Maryland Society of New York for the election of officers for 1920 was held Monday night of last week in the Waldorf. The result was the election of the following officers:

President, Herbert Noble; vice-presidents, Phillips A. S. Franklin, Adrian Leslie, Jr., Wm. Woodward, Russell B. Marchant and J. H. Hull; treasurer, W. B. Davis; recording secretary, H. T. Magruder; corresponding secretary, W. Campbell; trustees, L. L. Gadd, J. F. Supplee and J. S. McMaster.

The date of the society's annual reception and dance in the Hotel Plaza was set for January 23rd.

These were elected to resident membership: R. Magruder, Jr., L. L. Mackall, J. N. Meyers, C. P. Brigham, W. B. Lenherz, L. H. Usilton and T. E. Hamilton.

The Maryland Society that night reached its majority, having been organized in 1898. It was incorporated in 1900. For the past 20 years, with the exception of the year in a part of which the nation was at war, it has held an annual dinner, an annual dance and reception and a monthly smoker.

Pershing Praises Southern Troops

Addressing the opening session of the Southern Commercial Congress at Savannah, Ga., Monday night of last week General Pershing praised the South's part in the world's war, and declared that "the Southern men in our armies quickly reached the high standard of our finest troops." General Pershing was given a tremendous reception when he arrived there.

"The men of the South," the general said, carried the banners of the republic to the battlefields of France and victoriously crossed swords with the best troops the German empire could furnish. The glory of our arms goes to that determined stand at Chateau-Thierry, that stopped the enemy's advance; to the counter attack on the Marne salient that turned the tide of war; to their brilliant success at St. Mihiel; to the assault at the Canal du Nord, where Southern men lost their lives, and to the decisive drive from Verdun to Sedan that ended the war, where, as worthy sons, your men maintained the best traditions of a martial people."

Pay Your Subscription In Advance

The present cost of publishing a newspaper is all out of proportion to the subscription price of $1.00 and on January 1st, 1920, the price of the Marylander and Herald will be advanced to $1.50 a year.

Subscriptions should be paid in advance, and it is a simple matter for one to ascertain if he is in arrears or not by looking at the date on his label.

All subscribers to the Marylander and Herald who are not paid in advance by the first of January next will be removed from our list.

The time has come when leniency in this respect cannot be extended any longer. Under the present conditions it is suicidal to extend credit for subscriptions. It never was good business. Please be governed accordingly, and remit promptly if your subscription is due or in arrears. Look at the date on your label.

TREATY SHOULD BE RATIFIED

Maryland League To Enforce Peace Pass Resolutions

The Maryland Branch of the League to Enforce Peace held a meeting of its officers and Executive Committee at 219 Fidelity Building, Baltimore.

There was a discussion of the Treaty of Peace, and the general feeling was that it was most important that the Treaty should be ratified, and that the United States become a member of the League of Nations, and that question was so important that it overrode any question of the form of reservations that might be adopted by the Senate. The feeling was also strong that it was necessary to modify the preamble by striking out the requirement that the reservations should receive the written assent of three of the great powers, as that requirement might nullify the ratification.

The meeting thereupon unanimously adopted the following resolutions which were telegraphed to the President, the Vice-President and the Senators from Maryland:

"The Maryland Branch of the League to Enforce Peace through its Executive Committee and its various County Committees respectfully and earnestly request that the President again refer the Treaty of Peace with Germany containing the covenant of the League of Nations to the Senate, and that thereupon the Senate without delay ratify the Treaty with only such interpretative reservations as the Senate may deem absolutely necessary and as will meet with the acquiescence of the other parties to the Treaty and without the written assent thereto of any of the Allied powers, and that thereupon the President accept such resolution of ratification and deposit the same at Paris as provided in the Treaty of Peace.

Further, resolved that copies of this resolution be forwarded to the President, the President of the Senate, the Senators from Maryland, the Press of the State of Maryland and the City of Baltimore."

Republicans Meet In Chicago June 8

Republicans will hold their national convention in Chicago, beginning Tuesday, June 8th. This decision was reached by the Republican National Committee, in session late last Thursday afternoon. The vote in favor of Chicago was 44 to 9, St. Louis being the only serious competitor.

Despite the fact that the selection of the time and place for holding the convention completed the formal business of the National Committee meeting, the corridors of the Willard Hotel, where the meeting was held, hummed throughout the day with gossip concerning the various booms under way for the Presidential nomination.

Maryland Republican leaders turned out in force. Included among them were O. E. Weller, former Senator W. P. Jackson, National Committeeman from the State; Galen L. Tait, State chairman; Roland Marchant, City Solicitor of Baltimore; Senator Joseph L. France, Representative Frederick Zihlman, Major John Philip Hill, J. F. Robinson, Republican executive of the Ninth ward of Baltimore, and Prof. Willis M. Moore, former chief of the U. S. Weather Bureau.

The keynote of the Republican campaign was sounded by Gov. William C. Sproul, of Pennsylvania, at an open meeting of the committee held that morning. The admission of the public to this meeting was an innovation, and the meeting room was packed to the limit of its capacity by Republican leaders, subleaders and officeholders from all parts of the country. Large numbers of women, including those officially associated with the national and State committees, were present in large numbers, and the selection of Mrs. Medill McCormick, wife of Senator McCormick, of Illinois, to make one of the speeches of the occasion emphasized the determined effort of the party leaders to line up the women for the next campaign.

COAL STRIKE NOW SETTLED

Miners Ordered To Work—14 Per Cent. Raise Goes Into Effect

The strike of 400 bituminous coal miners of the country was settled at Indianapolis, Ind., last Thursday when the general committee of the United Mine Workers of America agreed to accept the plan offered by President Wilson. The members voted to accept the proposal of President Wilson shortly before 3 o'clock that afternoon.

Facts of coal strike:—400,000 miners were out for 33 working days. Approximately 36,000,000 tons of coal production was lost.

Loss of wages placed at $21,156,000.

Miners given an increase in pay of 39 cents a day.

Restrictions on use of coal to be continued until normal conditions restored.

Terms of settlement as agreed to by the miners provide for immediate return to work at 14 per cent. increase in wages over the wartime scale, against continuation of which the miners struck. Operation of the mines will be resumed, except as to wages, on the same basis as obtained prior to the strike.

Immediately following return of the miners the President will appoint a commission of three men, including one practical miner and one operator or mine owner in active business, which will consider further questions of wages and working conditions as well as the profits of operators and proper prices for coal. The duties of the commission will include readjustment of both wages and coal prices if it decides advisable, the readjustment to include differentials and internal conditions within and between the districts. The commission's report, under the agreement, will be made within 60 days if possible and will be accepted as the basis of a new wage agreement, the date of its effectiveness and its duration also to be decided by the commission.

The miners, in a statement given out by acting President John L. Lewis, of the United Mine Workers, declared that the President's proposal was agreed to because it contains a definite, concrete and practical method of adjustment of the miners' claim for increased wages. It also states that the United Mine Workers have full confidence in the President of the United States and a profound regard for his will and judgment.

After reviewing the terms of the plan for ending the strike, the statement says that "neither operators nor miners will be allowed to change the basis and no discrimination by the coal operators will be permitted." It was these specific propositions, it was said, which made the proposal acceptable to the miners.

The Old Folks' Christmas Present

By DELYSLE FERREE CASS

HE old folks always had wanted a baby girl, even long after Henry had been born. But the years rolled by, their boy grew up big, handsome and strong, always cheerful and helpful about the farm, and they tried to resign themselves to the fact that their humble hopes never would be satisfied. Old John Barker never referred to them, but every once in a while his wife would catch herself brooding, misty-eyed, of the sure day when young Henry would marry and leave them alone on the big farm for which there was no other heir.

Her sole comfort in the thought was that he would undoubtedly marry one of the honest buxom daughters of neighboring farmers, who would be content with country life and not expect to take him too far away from them in their old age.

Then came the great war, and Henry went overseas with his regiment as did most of the other true American boys. The old folks parted from him courageously—old John with a stern grip of calloused, toil-worn hands, and Ma Barker with tears steadfastly hidden behind her faded, loving eyes. He was their all and they gave him.

In the anxious months that followed the old folks' life held the same hard routine as ever on the farm. Old John drove to town oftener than usual—sometimes even twice a week—to see if any letters had come from mysterious, spister places in France, and he and mother would pore over the few that did arrive in the proud knowledge that their Henry was a "good" boy and was doing his duty. They prayed each night that the Lord would keep him safe to come back to them and to keep him from temptation while away from their care.

Then one day, like a thunderbolt out of a clear sky, came a terrible letter from France, which said: "I have found the sweetest little girl in all the world, and I'm bringing her home with me as a Christmas present to you. The regiment is now at Brest for embarkation and will surely be home for the holidays. . . . She is awfully pretty; black hair, big eyes and always wanting to be kissed. Her name is Angelique. . . . Of course she can't speak anything but French, but, dear mother and dad, I just know that you'll soon learn to love her as much as I do."

The old folks were stricken with consternation. Their Henry bringing home a French girl—a foreigner who wouldn't understand their simple, old-fashioned ways, and to whom they never could reconcile themselves! Such a one—accustomed to the wicked frivolities of Paris—never would fit in on the farm, however modest or "nice" she might be. More likely she would despise it, and then, and take their boy away to live in some big city—leave them lonely in the old age that was now upon them.

The old folks bowed their grayed heads beneath the blow, nearly heart broken, although they tried bravely to conceal their most harrowing doubts from each other.

"Maybe she won't expect to wear silk underwear all the time and will be willing to help you wipe the dishes evenings, mother," old John clumsily tried to console his wife as they sat alone in the farmhouse kitchen one night after chores were done. "And maybe, after all, she won't want to smoke cigarettes before people when she finds that American girls around here don't do that sort of thing."

Ma Barker shook her head sadly. "I'd do anything almost to make our boy happy, pa," she said, while the tears gathered in her faded eyes. "We must do our best not to let him notice how disappointed we are. Only I'm afraid she'll never be content here on the farm with us."

Ma Barker went about preparations for the big Christmas dinner with tearful premonitions, heavy hearted. She was nervous; wanted to sit down and cry, but felt she had to keep up before pa, for Henry's sake, if not ling else. She knew of old, exactly all the good things that her boy liked for the Christmas dinner—juicy black fruit cake, steaming plum pudding, odoriferous brown-roasted turkey, and but oh! she didn't know what to prepare for her—couldn't get any frog legs if she had wanted to. And the geography said that frog legs were a favorite French dainty.

Oh, whatever would the minister say? . . . yes, and Sally Howarth, too, when they heard about—about "Angelique!" Sally had been "sweet" on Henry, and poor old Ma Barker had hoped—

But, ah well! She mustn't let her dear boy know! He and his Angelique would be there tomorrow.

Christmas eve the old folks decorated the house with fir boughs, holly and strings of colored popcorn. They even trimmed a tree that had done for Henry ever since he had been a little boy. Ma Barker thought, with a rising lump in her throat, that maybe the French girl would look on it all as silly; would curl her lip at their homely endeavors, but . . .

Christmas morning Jed, the hired man, drove off in the sleigh to meet their boy and his bride at the station in town. The odor of savory good things on the kitchen stove permeated the whole farmhouse, and the big open fire in the dining room crackled in comfortable contrast to the sparkling cold of the snow outside. Ma Barker bustled about, sadly setting the table with her best dishes. She caught old John stealthily coming up the basement stairs with a dusty demijohn.

"Why, Pa Barker?" she exclaimed. "What's that you've got there? I do believe it's that cider that fermented so as we couldn't use it!"

"Yes, 'tis," admitted old John pretty shamefacedly and shuffling his feet to hide his embarrassment. "But you see, I . . . I thought that maybe as Henry's girl is a French woman, she'd rather like hard cider, seeing as we haven't any light wines nor champagne for her to drink."

A few minutes later they heard the sleighbells jingling, the snort of the horses and the crunch of runners on the snow in front of the house. Instantly the old folks forgot the dread that had been overshadowing them since the letter came. Ma Barker, with trembling fingers, undid her apron, smoothed her hair "so that that French girl would see her looking right," and rushed out of doors. Old John followed more decorously and still, for his rheumatism had been troubling him more than ever lately, making work harder for him about the farm. Yes, he certainly was going to miss Henry's help when—

"My boy! my boy!" cried Ma as she threw herself into the extended arms of the sturdy young soldier in bluish as he leaped out of the sleigh behind the broadly-grinning Jed. They clung ecstatically together for a few minutes until old John forced them apart to pump his son's hand up and down and mumble something about the bright sun on the snow making his eyes water.

And then, after the first exuberant greetings were over with, Henry laughingly disengaged himself and cried at them:

"And now let me introduce Angelique to you, people. And I want you to feel that she's yours as much as mine. She'll love you, ma, as she does me."

Angelique Was a Four-Year-Old Baby Girl.

From the depths of the hooded sleigh he fumbled a diminutive figure, swaddled in furs and laprobes, with two big, sparkling round eyes beaming on them and red lips curved up into an adorable smile.

Angelique was a four-year-old baby girl whom he had adopted from a war-devastated village near the front! "Her people were all killed by the Germans," Henry explained apologetically, "so I thought I'd bring her along instead of letting her be sent to some orphanage."

Ma Barker gave a choking sort of cry and caught the baby girl for which she had prayed so long to her relieved breast. As for old John, he swallowed hard, winked broadly at the grinning Jed beside the horse, and said:

"We've got some hard cider in the house, Jed. Better come in with me and have a nip before you put the horses up. Gosh, but come to think of it, Santa Claus' presents always are supposed to be surprises anyway, aren't they, Jed?"

SHOW WAR'S APPALLING COST

Figures Reveal Price World Paid to Prevent Hunnish Hordes Extinguishing Light of Liberty.

Some comparative figures which force a realization of the magnitude of the world war are given in Henry Ford's Dearborn Independent, from which is quoted:

"There were 19 major wars fought in the world in the 117 years from 1793 to 1910. The late war cost 50 per cent more in lives and cost 700 per cent more in money spent than the whole 19 other wars put together.

"The most costly in lives of the previous wars was that between England and France, 1793-1815, a total of 1,900,000 men having perished.

"Next came the war of 1854-56, in which England, France, Sardinia, Turkey, Austria and Russia fought; 649,737 men were killed.

"The more recent war between Russia and Japan came third, claiming the lives of 555,900 men.

"In our own Civil war both sides together lost 494,400 men, ranking fourth in loss of life in the great wars previous to the late one.

"In the struggle between France and Germany, so disastrous to France and which played a very important part in the recent peace settlement, 311,000 lives were lost.

"We Americans who remember or have read of the Civil war, of Gettysburg, of Pickett's charge, of Sherman's march to the sea, of Andersonville, have been wont to look on it as one of terrible slaughter—and it was.

"But Russia alone lost more than three times as many men in the late war as were lost by both the North and the South in the Civil war.

"Germany lost more than three times as many.

"France lost nearly three times as many.

"Great Britain lost nearly twice as many.

"Austria lost nearly twice as many.

"So great has been the development in the engines of death that it is almost impossible to conceive the increase of fatalities in the late war as compared with previous wars.

"There were 69 years of war among the various nations in the 117 years prior to 1910.

"As nearly as can be learned, 5,008,957 men lost their lives in those wars.

"That would mean 73,885 lives lost a year, or about 200 a day.

"In the late war there were 200 men killed an hour, about 4,800 for every day of the war; a total of 7,450,200, according to the best available figures. That would be about 1,750,000 a year.

"In money cost of previous wars the French-English war, 1793-1815, comes first with its tax of $6,250,000,000."

Alaskan Fur Seals.

A tentative annual census of the Alaskan fur seals just made by Dr. G. Dallas Hanna indicates the strength of the herd as 524,269 animals of all ages, compared with 496,432 seals in 1918. The number of pups born, equivalent to the number of breeding cows, was 157,172, an increase over 1918 of 10 per cent in each class. The aggregate figures for 1919 do not include the seals taken for their skins.

According to the telegraphic reports, 22,027 fur-seal skins have been taken on St. Paul Island and 3,354 on St. George Island through the regular killing season ending Aug. 10. A special effort has been made to reduce the excess of large male seals, with the result that over 6,400 such skins have been taken.

Sympathetic Neighborhood.

"How do you go about locating a 'still' in these parts?" asked the stranger.

"By you a reverent?" asked the ancient mountaineer.

"Oh, no. I'm a newspaper man, spending my vacation up here in the hills."

"Is that so? Well, I never yet heard tell of one of our paper fellows that didn't have a powerful thirst. You just set around a small, sunny, an' some of the boys'll git so darned sorry fur you they'll come right up an' offer to lend you a 'still.'"—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Agreeable Outlook.

"I just now overheard an argument between a theorist and a hard-headed business man."

"I presume the theorist said the business man lacked vision?"

"Oh, yes. That's a stock phrase among theorists who can't pay their board bills, but the business man said he could see a net profit of not less than $20,000 next year, with a little kine at Saratoga, Palm Beach or Monterey, and that was vision enough for him."

Latest Excuse.

The Misses (at 2 a. m.)—Nice hour to arrive home and a nice state to arrive in. I must say! Explain, you fools!

"Himself." Of friend asked me to help him catch evidence of violations of the wartime prohibition law, 'n' then, an' I lost (him) couldn't refuse. Buffalo Express.

Six to One.

"What a wonderful family! A charming wife and five beautiful daughters. You must be a very happy man."

"Yes, I suppose I ought to be, and I suppose I really am, but right now I want to say that I can tell you a lot about the difficulties of being out-voted six to one."

"BUDDY"

By EVA GOLDBERG.

Preparations were being made at "Idlers' Lodge" for the invasion of "The Jolly Ten." Polly French, their president, left on an earlier train than the other members, with plans for dressing up the crude bungalow and replacing isolation by a homelike atmosphere.

Buddy Moore, her acquaintance of half an hour, she had already adopted as camp mascot, and the little fellow proved his worth by running errands in the locality so unfamiliar to the newcomer.

"Now what a cozy touch that gives," Polly convinced herself, while she surveyed a corner where stood a settee upon which were arranged gayly-colored pillows. A picture here and there—several pennants tastefully distributed—what a transformation it made on the bare wall!

While Buddy ran out to gather some wild flowers for her vase, the industrious girl undertook to repair a broken rocking-chair. Missing her aim, the hammer heavily struck her finger.

My, but that hurt! What a fierce blow! And was the hand swelling?

The happy youngster, with an armful of fresh posies, rumped in to display them. Excited Polly glanced at herself in bungalow attire, then at Bud.

"Sonny, do you know where I can get a doctor? See what I've done!" "I don't know, Miss Polly," he ventured with childlike hesitancy, "but I can go to the village and find out."

"The village—bless your heart—that's half a mile down. You're an angel." And she stroked his crop of golden hair. "Aren't you afraid to go all alone?" she inquired. "You can read a doctor's sign, of course?" "Sure I can," he assured. "It says M. D., don't it? I can read—I'm seven now—in the second grade—we read hard books and write with ink, we do—"

"All right dear, then remember—the first sign that reads M. D.," she shouted as he ran towards the door. The little chap was half way down to the village when he passed a house whose brass doorplate attracted his eye. On it was displayed in large black lettering:

M. D. CLARKE.

Proprietor, Sunrise Studios. Shying the initials, and without attempting to decipher the rest, which was beyond his power, the youngster rang the bell and summoned the owner of that long title. A serious appearing young man approached him.

"Miss French says for you to come right over—she's hurt herself and it aches dread-dreadfully," the boy announced without any ceremony. Morton D. Clarke was in a quandary.

"French," he asked. "Who is she?" "You'd better hurry, 'cause she's afraid her hand's poisoned," the little messenger warned, ignoring the direct question.

The artist followed the speedy little footsteps that led to the road which introduced "Idlers' Lodge" where the patient was now in severe pain.

"Oh, doctor," she explained, upon meeting the hatless, breathless stranger, "I would have called at your office only that I am not acquainted with this town and so sent—"

"Doctor?" he interrupted, "but there must be some mistake, girlie. I'm no doctor, but an artist—up here for the summer."

"Let me waste no time, though," he suggested when noticing the exposed wound; "perhaps I can help you by 'phoning for one."

In a moment he was gone. Returning from the station, Mr. Clarke assured Miss French that a physician would arrive in 10 minutes. In the meantime he tried to make her forget her suffering by his engaging manner and interesting conversation.

"Now tell me," he urged, "who ever played a joke on me and gave you my name as being a doctor?"

Buddy, overhearing this, amusingly vindicated himself by proving the existence of an M. D. on Clarke's name. Both Morton and Polly laughed heartily, and after medical attendance had given relief, she was better fitted to enjoy the event occasioned by well-meaning, innocent Buddy.

Soon the artist very thoughtfully volunteered to finish the decorations about the cottage, and, by applying his artistic knowledge, great improvement did he achieve.

How satisfied Polly was! And wouldn't the girls be surprised and delighted at the welcome sight!

Nine tired vacationists greeted their president on the front porch, and one observing young lady, eyeing a man, whispered to Polly, "What a flirtation already?"

But in a short time everybody knew the reason for the man visitor's call. At the end of a well-spent vacation, everybody vowed their return in another season to that ideal spot. And so it was to be—only, were they gifted with the power to look ahead a year, they would foresee themselves as "The Jolly Nine," with a new president at the head, the former being Mrs. Clarke.

And again, looking ahead, and peering on the veranda of the "Sunrise Studios," they would hear Morton say to his wife, while recollecting the instance that brought them together, "And yet the folks say, 'what's in a name?'"

Try One Brunswick Then Decide

The best way to know for yourself the superiority of the Brunswick Tire is to buy one and compare it.

That is, if the very name of Brunswick isn't sufficient proof to you, as it is to most men, that here is an extraordinary tire.

Thousands of men who have known the name of Brunswick for years, realize that a Brunswick Tire has to be the best—for a mediocre product could never bear this historic name.

Long before the Overland Trail became famous, the House of Brunswick was established. It was one of the chief users of rubber for fifty years before automobiles came into use.

No concern with such a history could afford to offer anything but the best. For reputations are built slowly, but can be quickly destroyed.

This is a practical guarantee that Brunswick Tires offer more than the usual, yet at no added cost.

Get your first one now. You'll not be satisfied until you have ALL Brunswicks.

Elam K. Woodoth Wants Your Holly, Wreaths and Mistletoe

He wanted it last year, and got it, and it is a matter of record that he paid more money to the shippers than any other man in the business. The past fifteen years he has been receiving Holly Wreaths, Box Holly and other greens from this section and invariably has paid the shippers more money than any other firm in the business.

If you want any information, ask him; he will tell you, and tell you the truth. When he says, "Don't ship any Greens before the 5th or 6th of December," he knows what he is talking about. The Railroad Company will not allow the goods to remain in the depot, and as there is no trade for Greens before December 10th, why ship them until it is time for them to be sold.

Prices were high last year, but all indications point to higher prices this year, and Mr. Woodoth is the man to get the high prices for the shippers.

Quite a few jobbers will be around to see you and want to buy your Wreaths, or whatever you have to sell, but if you are wise you will stick to the Old Reliable Merchant who has always made good. When the time comes, which is December 5th or 6th, start all your shipments to

Episcopal Campaign

BISHOP JOHN G. MURRAY

Bishop J. G. Murray of the Episcopal Diocese of Maryland is a member of the Joint Commission directing the Episcopal Nation-Wide Campaign. He was one of the four members of the commission who revised the survey of the Church's needs, and recommended the $42,000,000 budget for the campaign.

Bishop Murray was born in Baltimore, and ordained to the priesthood in 1894, immediately taking charge of a mission in Alabama. Two years later he became rector of the Church of the Advent in Birmingham, and in 1903, rector of St. Mary's Church in Baltimore. He was made Bishop Coadjutor of Maryland in 1909, and Bishop in 1911.

The purpose of the Nation-Wide Campaign is to arouse every member of the church to its responsibilities and opportunities in the present crucial era of reconstruction; to send out 1500 new workers that the church may expand its educational, hospital and social service work at home and abroad. More than one hundred thousand men and women are workers in this tremendous campaign.

DOG PROPERLY STANDS FIRST

Of All the Brute Creation, That Faithful Animal Has Rendered the Greatest Service to Man.

In the early days, centuries and centuries ago, man lived mostly by the chase, as today the last surviving savage tribes still live. The raising of herds, the tilling of the soil, the manufacture of goods, all were unknown. Wild animals, hunted in the forests with stone weapons and pointed sticks, furnished almost the only resource. Their flesh gave food, their skins provided clothing. To catch the game, a fleet-footed auxiliary in the chase was necessary; to keep these dangerous animals in a proper state of awe, a courageous defender was needed by man. This auxiliary, this defender, and, best of all, this friend, devoted even to death, was the dog; a gift from heaven to help man in his pitiful beginnings. With the aid of the dog, life was rendered less perilous, food more assured. Leisure followed, and from being a hunter man became a herdsman. The herd was formed, at first very indolent and at the slightest lack of watchfulness taking again to the wild life of old. Its keeping was confided to the dog, which, posted on some rising ground of the pasture, its scent to the wind and ear on the watch, followed the herd with vigilant eye and rushed to bring back the runaways, or to drive off some evil-intentioned beast. Thanks to the dog, the herd gave abundance—milk and its products, flesh for food and warm wool for clothing. Then, relieved from the terrible anxiety concerning daily provisions, man took it into his head to dig in the earth and make it produce grain. Agriculture sprang into being, and with it, little by little, civilization. By the very force of circumstances, therefore, man in all countries is at first a hunter, later he becomes a herdsman and ends by being an agriculturist. The dog is absolutely necessary to him, first for hunting, then for watching and defending the herd. Of all our domestic animals, accordingly, the dog is the earliest on record and the one that has rendered us the greatest service.—Chicago Daily News.

TUESDAY MORNING, DEC. 16, 1919

The old man shows a splendid appreciation of the gifts the kids bring him bought with his own money.

Don't refuse to buy an article for a Christmas gift merely because your friend will find it very useful.

Long lists of violators of automobile laws reported. It would be a much shorter job to make a list of the non-violators.

The "Reds" who are being sent to Europe should clearly understand that this trip is not awarded to them as the result of winning any popularity contest.

Latest news from Washington is that it will undoubtedly be possible to rent the White House for the next four years without putting a To Let ad in the papers.

News dispatch says "President Wilson getting back into the harness." General impression has been that Congress was the one that wore the harness.

That Columbia professor who claims he can feed a family of five on $11.99 a week, can get a large number of contracts in Princess Anne any time he wants 'em.

The Pennsylvania railroad says it takes ten men in its shops to do what six men did before the war, but it is a comfort to feel that the ten are not overworking.

While coal will be very short before the winter is over one can feel confident that there will be sufficient coal smoke to soot up a large number of newly painted houses.

Formerly people threw away their shoes when they began to wrinkle. At present prices they discard 'em when the stockings get too conspicuous through the holes.

The fact that an irate citizen pounds the air and demands to have the automobile speeders curbed, does not prove that he has gone to the police and issued complaints against any of 'em.

SETTLING STRIKES

The public feels keenly the inconvenience, loss of production and suffering resulting from strikes. It believes that there ought to be some enlightened method of settling these disputes and that a method that adjusts them by force is a relic of barbarism.

But while it is most desirable to have these quarrels promptly settled, it is even more essential to have them settled right. The public would better put up with loss and suffering, rather than have temporary adjustments made that contain the seeds of future trouble. The lesson needs to be learned by both parties to these disputes. A lot of strikes have been called because the strikers thought they could get anything they wanted merely by demanding it and holding up the community until they got it. Also many labor leaders have called strikes because they felt it would be personally profitable to them to make a showing of what they could do for their men. These elements of people need to lose a lot of strikes before they can be brought to reason.

On the other hand there are a lot of employers who still take a very reactionary position. They have learned nothing out of all this strife and turmoil. They gorge themselves with unwarranted profits, are indifferent to the welfare of their workpeople and take no pains to come into intimate relations with their help.

Each element before deciding its course in a labor trouble should take counsel of the wisest people in the community who represent both humanitarian sentiment and business sense. The side that has the conscience and common sense of the community behind it should not give in to unreasonable requirements but it ought to fight out the issue to a finish. Only the solutions ought to fight out the issue to a finish, that are founded on right and justice will remain permanent.

PATRIOTISM

The popular theory of patriotism is that it is the spirit that makes one willing to fight for his country. But while the willingness to fight is the supreme call which patriotism brings, it is only one of many demands which it makes of the loyal citizen.

The country depends upon its schools to promote a broader conception. The children should be sent out ardent Americans and with the idea that patriotism calls upon them for attainment of certain ends in community life.

Patriotism requires that every voter make all possible effort to vote at every primary and election. It demands that people cease struggling exclusively to grab riches and get gain and have a good time and that they work for the good of the community. It requires that people give time to public causes and help remove the festering evils that prey on community life. Patriotism is not merely fighting wars but it is making a better country.

MAKING UNITED STATES RESPECTED

Semi-civilized governments have always acted very promptly when the British government and other European powers demanded protection for their citizens. But American rights have not been so well defended. When the security of American rights was asked, they would hum and haw and argue. Consequently the "gringos" have not been much respected in countries like Mexico.

The United States does not want to get into any war with Mexico. It feels some sinister hand under the surface pulling strings to embroil this country. It can see how it would be for the interest of Germany, for instance, to have this nation fully engaged on this side of the water in a long drawn out conflict.

The United States has to deal with a nominal government in Mexico City that is proud, stubborn, unfriendly and unable to enforce its will over the country it pretends to rule. Outlawry is going from bad to worse, kidnapping Americans threatens to become a lucrative business. Every time ransom money is paid to those bandits it encourages them to carry off some one else.

This country will have to do something more than talk to make itself respected. It must extend to its citizens as good protection as the European nations give their people.

Probably these ends can be accomplished without any general invasion. But smart diplomatic exchanges and severe notes won't do it. Possibly direct negotiations between leading officials of the two governments might secure some better basis of agreement. Some wise advice handed out by the South American countries might show Mexico the folly of her contrary course. But the fundamental difficulty is the weakness of the Mexican national government to maintain law and order. It may become necessary to give assistance to some other groups of Mexicans who may undertake to establish settled conditions.

The operators who are going to put up the price of coal should not expect that their townspeople are going to call around with any framed testimonials expressing admiration. And no delegations of citizens as yet have presented the striking miners with any loving cups or gold headed canes.

Navy Victory Buttons For Reservists

Distribution of 100,000 Victory buttons to officers and men of the Naval Reserve Force who are on inactive duty is to be begun at once. This was announced last Thursday afternoon by the Navy Department through the Bureau of Navigation.

Those entitled to the buttons must present themselves with their papers properly made out to the commandant whose headquarters are nearest them. Upon their papers proving to be correct, they will be given buttons.

The victory button is of bronze, with a star in the center. It is to be worn by those who served in the Navy during the World War when in civilian attire. Navy men who saw service in the war and are still in uniform, or when uniforms are worn by men on the inactive list, may wear the Victory medal and bar.

Should Be Quarantined.

Many physicians believe that anyone who has a bad cold should be completely isolated to prevent other members of the family and associates from contracting the disease, as colds are about as catching as measles. One thing sure—the sooner one rids himself of a cold the less the danger, and you will look a good while before you find a better medicine than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to aid you in curing a cold.

If you know of an item or a piece of news, tell us about it. That's what we want. But a newspaper man sometimes experiences more difficulty in gathering news than one would imagine. This was the case when a reporter in a neighboring town who, a few days ago, was sent to write up a fire in a residence. Going to the door he inquired for the lady of the house. The maid said she was out. "Are any of the family at home?" inquired the reporter. "No, they are all out," was the reply. "Well, wasn't there a fire here last evening?" "Yes," said the hired girl, "but that's out too."

There is renewed activity among the various centers of the Episcopal Church throughout the diocese of Easton for its nation-wide campaign. A number of meetings at the various local centers of the campaign have been held. A general call has been issued for their attendance to consider, in the largest way, the great enterprise to be undertaken. A mistaken impression, given out in some quarters, is that the meetings are intended only for teams and team captains. In fact, they are meant for the church people generally, and entire congregations of the Episcopal Church are urgently requested to attend wherever meetings are being held.

Advice To Business Men

No business man in any town should allow a newspaper published in his town to go without his name and business being mentioned somewhere in its columns. This applies to all kinds of business—general stores, dry goods, grocers, furniture dealers, manufacturing establishments, automobile dealers, mechanics, professional men and in fact all classes of business men. This does not mean that you should have a whole or half or even a quarter page ad in every issue of the paper, but your name and business should be mentioned if you do not use more than a two line space. A stranger picking up a newspaper should be able to tell just what business is represented in a town by looking at the business mentioned in the paper. This is the best possible town advertiser. The man who does not advertise his business does an injustice to himself and his town. He is the man who expects the newspaper to do the most free boosting for his town. The man who insists on sharing the business that comes to a town but refuses to advertise his business is not a valuable addition. The life of any town depends upon the live, wide-awake and liberal advertising business men.

ALLENBY STOPS GRAFT OF TURK

Persecution of Armenians and Confiscation of Property Prevented by English Officer.

The most arbitrary city boss in the world, it seems safe to say, as well as the most unscrupulous politician of modern times, has turned up in Aintab, Armenia, to judge from an official report recently made by Major Stephen Trowbridge, under Gen. Edmund H. H. Allenby's orders.

He is a Turk named Besim Bey. Until the Near East Relief agents stopped him, he practiced upon the terrified Armenians such forms of super-graft as might well make every other corrupt politician in the world green with envy, and such cruelties as make all other heartless rulers, from Nero down, seem sweet and gentle characters. His office was that of Municipal Chief Accountant of Aintab; but, as all dishonest office-holders know, it isn't the job that matters, but the sugar-plums that go with it. Besim Bey plucked sugar-plums with both hands, night and day.

Even inspired city bosses have their day. Besim Bey's came when the Near East Relief agents found that no thorough Armenian relief work could be done in that city while such conditions of terrorization existed. General MacAndrew ordered the arrest and removal of the six worst Turks in the ring that ruled the city, and Besim Bey qualified, as usual, for first place.

Near East Situation Now "Most Desperate in World," Says Hoover.

Herbert Hoover, who has now become a member of the Executive Committee of Near East Relief, which is caring for nearly 2,000,000 Armenian and Syrian refugees and who, if any one, speaks with authority when he tells of human suffering, says in a formal statement:

"In my opinion, the situation in the Near East is the most desperate in the world."

Mr. Hoover has sent a letter to Cleveland H. Dodge, treasurer of Near East Relief, 1 Madison avenue, New York, in which he says:

"In accepting your invitation to become a member of the Executive Committee of the Near East committee, I do so with reluctance, but out of a sense of duty towards one of the most difficult situations in Europe. Until some political settlement can be obtained for the Near East and some government established in responsibility for the care and repatriation of the Armenian population in the Caucasus, this mass of people must live sheerly by the charity of the United States. There are in the Caucasus approximately 1,800,000 Armenians, of whom 800,000 are entirely destitute—refugees from Turkey—and amongst them a tremendous mass of children.

"I cannot too strongly urge upon the members of the committee and their supporters the critical necessity of concentrating every possible effort to support Colonel Haskell's administration in the amounts that he requires; otherwise we shall witness one of the greatest tragedies of the entire war."

DEATH RATE DROPS WHEN RELIEF ARRIVES

Lives of thousands of Armenian children already have been saved by the Near East Relief taking over the Armenian orphanages, according to detailed reports, which have just reached the headquarters of that organization. These institutions had been run by the Armenians since the beginning of the war to care for the children whose parents had been murdered by the Turks. Because of lack of food, clothing and medicine, the death rate among the children in these institutions averaged as high as twenty or thirty a day in some cases.

When Armenian funds became inadequate the Near East Relief took charge of the orphanage. Since that time the death rate has been greatly reduced. Given good food and care the children are quickly returning to normal physical and mental condition.

It is estimated by persons who have made a survey of Armenia that 120,000 children will die during the next year unless they are given food and care. Near East Relief is the only organization now operating in Western Asia and it is making an appeal to save these Christian children.

SKIMMILK FED CALF TO GOOD ADVANTAGE

Change From Whole Milk Should Be Made Gradually.

Amount of Meal to Be Given Depends on Size of Animal—Encourage Youngsters to Take Hay and Grain at an Early Age.

Many times a farmer selling milk has a surplus which he runs through the separator. This provides a limited amount of skimmilk which can be fed to calves to good advantage. In such case the milk in the ration can be gradually changed from whole milk to skimmilk at the end of two or three weeks by substituting an equal amount of skimmilk for each portion of whole milk removed, according to W. W. Swett of the University of Missouri College of Agriculture. A complete substitution can be effected in a week or ten days, at which time a good healthy calf should be receiving about six quarts a day. In case the supply of milk is irregular it is well to have on hand a supply of skimmilk powder which can be mixed with water at the rate of one pound to every nine pounds of water. This can be fed the same as the whole or skimmilk.

Teaching Calf to Drink, Showing Two

When the calf is started on calf meal the amount to be added varies with the size of the calf and the brand of meal. Directions included with the meal should be followed very carefully. In almost every case, the recommendations are to mix the meal with either hot or cold water in sufficient amounts to make a thick, pasty gruel. This is stirred carefully to remove all lumps and then diluted with boiling water. The gruel is usually added to the skimmilk and fed at approximately blood temperature. It should never be fed cooler than 95 degrees Fahrenheit and should be given at the same temperature every day. A thermometer is necessary; "guess work" has no place in calf feeding. The amount of skimmilk should be gradually decreased as the amount of calf-meal gruel is increased. At the end of six weeks the milk can be discontinued. At this time the calf may be taught to eat the dry meal from a feed box if small quantities are rubbed on its nose after it has finished drinking. Feed the dry meal regularly and in small quantities so that none will be left in the feed box to spoil. Give just what the calf will readily eat, and develop the appetite slowly. The gruel can be continued until the calf is four months old and perhaps somewhat longer if desired.

It is always advisable to get the calves to take hay and grain at an early age as possible. They will usually begin when three or four weeks old if given the opportunity. The early development of this habit helps greatly when calves are taken off the calf-meal ration, for they are already taking liberal quantities of hay and grain and the change to this ration alone will be gradual. The calves will not suffer such a serious "set-back" as they might otherwise experience. For the first six to eight weeks the hay fed should be a fine grade of timothy or a coarse alfalfa or mixed hay. Fine alfalfa hay is so palatable that the young calf will eat too much. Either feed a coarse hay or limit the amount of hay which the calf can get. After this time alfalfa may be fed liberally in safety.

PROMINENT MEN IN XMAS APPEAL FOR ARMENIANS

Former President Taft Leads in Eloquent Plea for Support of Near East Relief.

To save the lives of 800,000 people in Armenia and other western Asian countries and to care for more than 250,000 orphans who are homeless there former President William Howard Taft, Henry Morgenthau, former ambassador to Turkey, and Alexander J. Hemphill, the New York banker, as members of the Executive Committee of Near East Relief, the former American Committee on Armenian and Syrian Relief, have issued a Christmas appeal for continued support of this organization and its work.

Near East Relief is now operating under a government charter and is practically alone in the western Asian field, the Red Cross several months ago having announced its withdrawal.

The Christmas letter, a classic of its kind, is as follows:

"Dear Friend—Another little child has shivered up and died.

"The mother, creeping back, gaunt and cold, from the desert, has put down the thin little bones with those that strew the road and has sunk beside them, never to rise again.

"Only a little child and a mother out on the bleak Armenian road! But what is that vision hovering there and what is that voice the cold winds bear to the ears of our souls—I was hungry and ye gave me no meat; I was naked and ye clothed me not."

"Today—yes, today—while we are preparing our gifts for Christmas, many more of these little children—not a hundred nor a thousand, but 250,000 of them—are still wandering unfed and alone in that dead land, their weakened skins clinging in fear to their rattling bones, and they are crying out with gasping breath, 'I am hungry. I am hungry!' And the voice of one who watches us as we prepare gifts to celebrate his birthday comes again to the ears of our souls—I am hungry! I am hungry!! I am hungry!!!"

"Now, the children and the mothers in Armenia are dreading the winter.
Just human remnants they are, not protected, many of them, from the elements by even the dignity of shad-dow-grass! How shall we sing our Christmas songs and laugh and light the candles and give beautiful gifts while that pleading voice cries in the ears of our souls, 'I am naked and cold
—naked and cold?'"

"But we can feed and clothe these perishing ones—some of them—before it is too late. Herbert Hoover has cal-ed from the Caucasus. 'It is impossible that the loss of 200,000 lives can at this day be prevented, but the remaining 500,000 can possibly be saved.'
They need not starve and freeze and die if we will save them. In the name of him who saw the multitude 'as sheep not having a shepherd' and was moved with compassion toward them, who exclaimed when his disciples would turn them away, 'They need not depart, give ye them to eat!' open your heart and purse and give to these Christians whom he loves, who are suffering for him and with whom he is suffering. They need not die.
Save them to eat."

"Ten dollars a month will provide food, clothes, shelter and education toward self support for one orphan child.

"Five dollars a month will provide food, clothes and shelter for one orphan child.

"He fed 5,000 hungry people in the wilderness and said to his followers,
'The things that I do shall ye do also,
and greater things than these shall ye do.' Today nearly 800,000 destitute Armenians—his people—need food and clothing.

"He took little children in his arms and blessed them. Today will you take one or more of these sad, cold, hungry little children of Armenia into your arms and heart in his name and give them food and warmth and life?"

"What a joyful Christmas it will be when with your songs and your laugh-er you hear a voice of wondrous sweetness speaking to you, 'O, ye blessed of my Father, I was hungry and ye gave me meat, I was naked and ye clothed me; inasmuch as ye have done it to these, my brethren, ye have done it to me.'"

"In his name.

"Faithfully yours,

"WILLIAM H. TAFT.

MORGENTHAU PLEADS FOR HELPING HAND IN THE NEAR EAST

Former Ambassador to Turkey Says America Should Not Let Armenian Allies Starve.

By HENRY MORGENTHAU,
Former Ambassador to Turkey and Leader in Near East Relief.

If they were good enough to fight and die for us when we needed their help so sorely, they are good enough now to share some meager little crumbs from our plenty when they have nothing, when hundreds of thousands of them are homeless, unclad, foodless and threatened with extermination by their enemies and our own.

Not far from a million Christians have been murdered by their Turkish oppressors. Hungry, terror stricken hundreds of thousands of refugees now look to the United States for succor.

Have Trust in America.

We cannot refuse. Next to their faith in God is their trust in the disinterested good will and generosity of the American people. They look to us as the human agency to extricate them from the frightful situation in which they have been left as a consequence of the war.

If we should fail to aid them, starvation and the winter's cold would go far to completing the work done by the unspeakable Turk.

I have not seen with my own eyes the misery in which the Armenians now exist. I have been spared that. But the reports which have been brought in by agents of the Near East Relief and by representatives of the Peace Conference paint a picture of wretchedness inconceivable to those who have not a first hand impression of the savagery of the Mussulman.

Exiled From Homes.

Since the beginning of the war the Turkish Armenians have been largely refugees from their homes. A simple agricultural people, they have been exiles from their farms, deprived of all opportunity to support themselves. Year by year their sufferings have increased. Now, a year after fighting has ceased, they are still living the life of nomads, able to continue to keep alive only by virtue of American philanthropy.

These homeless people—"filthy infidels" to the Turk—were good enough to exert their poor might in our behalf while the war was still in the balance. Massacres of a half century had not so broken their spirit that they dared not fight for right and for democracy when justice was the issue. We accepted their aid then. Surely we shall not pass them by without compassion now.

The day has passed when any self-respecting man dares permit absorption in his own personal affairs to exclude consideration of his neighbor's well being. No honorable man can knowingly allow his neighbor to hunger or to go unclothed. The Christian peoples of the Near East are our neighbors. The money needed to relieve them can be spared without causing any man, woman or child in the United States to suffer.

Must Not Rest on Past.

In other years of our own free will we sent missionaries to Turkey. Our schools and colleges and hospitals have played a wonderful role in humanizing that dark spot in the world. Our ideas, our educational resources, our material equipment, have been leaven in the Near East. Because we have done well in times past we have this great opportunity for the present.

The Armenians have been treated as perhaps no people in history have been treated because they are the spiritual brothers of western races.

Will America help them? There can be but one answer. Their necessity is dire, but our power is great. We are wealthy. We are a member of the family of nations. Our brothers call us. Food, clothes, money, are immediately wanted. If ever unmerited suffering called for succor the plight of the Armenians should be heeded now. A few months more and it may be relief will be too late for those myriads whom only we can save. We shall not fail them.

THE MOST DANGEROUS DISEASE

No organs of the human body are so important to health and long life as the kidneys. When they slow up and commence to lag in their duties, look out! Find out what the trouble is—without delay. Whenever you feel nervous, weak, dizzy, suffer from sleeplessness, or have pains in the back—wake up at once. Your kidneys need help. These are signs to warn you that your kidneys are not performing their functions properly. They are only half doing their work and are allowing impurities to accumulate and be converted into uric acid and other poisons, which are causing you distress and will destroy you unless they are driven from your system.

GIVE ME SOME WAR SAVING STAMPS

MANY PERSONS HELD BY HYPNOTIC SPELL

Erroneously Imagine That Value of Money Lies Within Itself and Not in Those Things It Will Buy.

Thousands of Americans are under a hypnotic spell of money. With money as a viewpoint they have come to regard money as a great treasure in itself whereas money has its real significance only in what it buys for us. A man's reward for his work does not depend merely on what he earns. For the true reward of labor is the service the worker is able to obtain with the money he earns.

It is evident that a man may earn twice as much as he once did in money and yet be no better off if the goods he needs cost twice or three times what they formerly cost. But it is apparent to all that apart from increase or decrease in wages as expressed in money, there is a wide difference in the real value earned by persons receiving the same in actual cash.

What a person gets out of the world in return for what he gives it, depends finally on the choice made in disposing of his income. One man by wise buying, careful and consistent saving and safe and profitable investment in such securities as War Savings Stamps, Treasury Savings Certificates and Liberty Bonds, may transform the reward of his labor into all the necessities and comforts of life that he requires and even its luxuries. Another, gaining exactly the same sum in actual cash, may through waste, extravagance and failure to save, find himself unable to secure even the necessities.

Whether or not a worker earns a sum which fulfills his estimate of what should be his just reward for labor, the value of his money for the way he spends it remains with him and cannot be transferred to any other person. Prices of necessities and luxuries may change and the line of the tide but the fundamental fact remains unchanged that a man's earnings every man can, within limits, determine the richness of the reward of his labor. He can accomplish this by the amount of restraint and intelligence he exercises in spending when he has to spend and in saving and investing what he has to save.

SCALPER OF WAR SAVING STAMPS ARRESTED.

From every Federal Reserve District in the United States information is being received by the Treasury Department in Washington that a determined war is being waged against persons, who, by preying upon the military are trafficking in War Saving and Treasury Certificates.

The latest information regarding the activities of the "scalpers" comes from St. Louis, where two arrests have been made by Deputy United States Marshals. Both prisoners were released on $5,000 bonds and are now waiting for a hearing before the Federal commissioner.

One of the men is said to have altered registered numbers on War Savings Certificates, it being alleged by St. Louis postal authorities that in the mail office were found $875 in War Savings Certificates from which the registration numbers had been removed. It is charged that the other accused man had in his possession $866.90 worth of altered government securities.

One of the suspects is employed by a St. Louis brokerage concern; the other is the proprietor of a hotel.

WHY CERTIFICATES ARE SO ATTRACTIVE

Unusual Features Make New Government Securities Splendid Medium in Which to Invest Savings.

Details of the features which make the new Treasury Savings Certificates of $100 and $1,000 maturity value attractive investments have been compiled in pamphlet form by the Savings Division of the Treasury Department. In addition to the regulations governing the sale of these "baby" securities, the pamphlet contains the rulings of the Secretary of the Treasury on various questions concerning the new issue.

One of the interesting features of these certificates that make them unique investments is that they may be issued and registered in the name of an infant. Every certificate is issued and registered as a means of absolute protection to the purchaser. Certificates may also be issued and registered jointly to two persons and may be made payable to either of the two purchasers or to both.

Rulings governing payment of certificates to deceased owners are also contained in the pamphlet, with specific mention made for each legal requirement according to laws of various states regarding wills, etc. At discretion of the Secretary of the Treasury, in event of no other legal obstacles, payment will be made in the following order of classes:

First, husband, wife, next of kin or other person who pays the reasonable funeral expenses of the last illness or other preferred claims against the decedent's estate; second, creditor for funeral expenses, expense of last illness or other preferred claims; third, husband or wife, child, or children, father or mother, any other of the next of kin of the deceased.

UNCLE SAM SAYS HERE'S LIBERTY BOND'S BROTHER.

Treasury Savings Certificates are a new issue of United States government securities. They are of $100 and $1,000 denominations. They run for five years and bear 4 per cent interest, compounded every three months.

They are little brothers of the Liberty Bond and big brothers of the War Savings Stamp.

A $100 Savings Certificate costs $84.00 this month. It will be worth $100 January 1, 1924. It is cashable any time with accrued interest at any postoffice on ten days' notice. It is a government obligation.

A $1,000 savings certificate costs $844.00 this month. It will be redeemed by Uncle Sam January 1, 1924, for $1,000. It is cashable with accrued interest at any time at any postoffice on ten days' notice.

Treasury savings certificates are registered in your name, thus insuring against loss.

BRITISH NOW SAVING LARGE SUMS OF MONEY.

In spite of the exigencies of war, the volume of saving deposits in England has grown tremendously in the last five years according to the comptroller of the British Post Office Savings Bank. Only twice, the comptroller states, was the flow of savings deposits interrupted: once by the war loan of 1915 and once by the 5 per cent loan of 1917.

Total deposits increased despite the fact that depositors transferred over $1,000,000,000 from their postal savings into the various issues of the government. The recent figures show conclusively, the comptroller asserts, the power of saving of the British public for the amount diverted to the government war issue has not been reduced or dissipated but merely included in the savings.

The Soldiers' home at Washington, the first institution of the kind in the United States, was established in 1851. A tract of land for the purpose, 200 acres in extent, was purchased with a sum of money levied by Gen. Winfield Scott on the City of Mexico during the war with that country. There are now several branches of the national home and state homes in twenty-seven states.

Fatal Objection.

Newspaper mention the other day of a Trojan being sold at the Revere house auction brought to mind the story of the newly rich lady and the art dealer. On being shown a painting of the above-named artist, she declared it wouldn't do, as she wanted the picture for her drawing room. "But what is your objection to this one?" inquired the dealer. "Mercy!" exclaimed the lady. "one couldn't have a cow in one's drawing room, you know."—Boston Transcript.

Something at Stake.

"What are you shouting 'police' for?" asked the inquisitive old gentleman. "I don't see anybody trying to rob or beat you." "Don't bother me," answered the citizen who was standing on a corner yelling with all his might. "A man from Skeetersville bet me half a dollar I couldn't rouse up a cop in Toad-vine if I yelled for half a day, and I'm just trying to win that money."

"As I feel that every family should know what a splendid medicine Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is, I am only too pleased to relate my experience and only wish I had known of its merits years ago," writes Mrs. Clay Fry, Ferguson Station, Mo. To Our Subscribers

Owing to the great scarcity and large increase in the price of newspaper paper—2 to 5 cents per pound higher than last year—and all labor conditions, it is impossible for us to issue this paper at the rate of $1.00 per year. Therefore, beginning on January 1st, 1920, the subscription price will be $1.50 a year in advance.

Every subscriber to the Marylander and Herald whose pink address slip is marked "18" or "19" is requested to pay his subscription. If the slip reads January "18" or "19," or February, or March, or any other month in the years 1918 or 1919, it means your subscription has expired and you should send that amount by mail or call at this office and settle the same at once.

All subscribers who are in arrears after January 1st, 1920, will be removed from our subscription list as the cost of production makes it necessary to cut down our output to those who pay promptly.

HOLIDAY MINSTREL SHOW

Princess Anne Firemen Will Give A Second Entertainment Dec. 26th

The firemen of Princess Anne will give their second minstrel show of the year in the Auditorium on the evening of December 26th.

The entertainment committee is giving a great deal of time to this show with the idea of making it one of the best they have yet produced. The minstrel show is being gotten up with the idea of giving the public two solid hours of fun. The program will consist of nine grand first parts with the usual singing, dancing, jokes and drills. The second part will be a howling farce with sixty laughs to the minute. Tickets will be on sale December 15th. Prices, adults, 50 cents; children, 25 cents; general admission, 35 cents.

The money from this entertainment will go for equipment of the new headquarters of the firemen. Buy your tickets early and get a good seat to see the fun.

$1,000,000 Fire In Baltimore

The group of buildings formerly occupied by Johns Hopkins University, and about a score of other structures in the square bounded by Howard, Ross, Monument and Eutaw streets, Baltimore, were either destroyed or wrecked by fire early last Friday. The loss is roughly estimated at $1,000,000, of which about $700,000 falls upon the University.

The blaze started in McCoy Hall, of the Hopkins group, from an undetermined cause. An explosion followed almost instantly, and heavy explosions occurred in the building from time to time.

McCoy Hall had been used recently as a welfare building and previously as the headquarters of the Chemical Warfare Service of the Army, now moved to Edgewood Arsenal.

Among the buildings wrecked or damaged were Levering Hall, the gymnasium, the biological laboratories and the Baltimore City College annex.

The other property damaged was chiefly buildings occupied by small tradesmen and dwellings used as rooming and boarding houses. High winds swept the sparks a half mile away to the centre of the city, and hundreds of men were on the roofs of department stores, stamping out flames and using water and chemicals.

Eutaw Street Methodist Episcopal Church, three blocks distant, which had been boarded with firebrands, broke out into flames several hours later and was badly damaged. Francis Asbury, first Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church in America, is buried under this church.

The rapid spread of the flames is attributed to poor water pressure. The explosions in McCoy Hall are unexplained. No explosives were stored in the building, it is declared.

The present capital, $50,000.00, and surplus of about $25,000.00, being entirely inadequate to take care of the extraordinary growth of the business, it was unanimously decided to increase the capital stock to $300,000.00, the increase of $250,000.00 being divided into $150,000.00 of common and $100,000.00 of preferred stock.

Of the common stock $50,000.00 will, in accordance with the established custom of the Exchange, be offered to the old stockholders according to their respective holdings, they being entitled to take an amount equal to the number of shares now held by them, at par $5 per share. The remainder of the common stock will not at the present time be issued.

The preferred stock in the amount of $100,000 will be issued at this time and will also be offered to the old stockholders at par, $100 per share, they being entitled to subscribe for such amounts as they desire, but in the event the issue is oversubscribed, then the stock will be allotted according to their respective holdings of common stock.

This stock will carry a cumulative annual dividend of 7 per cent, payable semi-annually and will be preferred as to dividends and also as to assets in case of dissolution or winding up of the affairs of the association.

Pay Your Subscription In Advance

The present cost of publishing a newspaper is all out of proportion to the subscription price of $1.00 and on January 1st, 1920, the price of the Marylander and Herald will be advanced to $1.50 a year.

Subscriptions should be paid in advance, and it is a simple matter for one to ascertain if he is in arrears or not by looking at the date on his label.

All subscribers to the Marylander and Herald who are not paid in advance by the first of January next will be removed from our list.

The time has come when leniency in this respect cannot be extended any longer. Under the present conditions it is suicidal to extend credit for subscriptions. It never was good business. Please be governed accordingly, and remit promptly if your subscription is due or in arrears. Look at the date on your label.

Cost Of Maryland Elections

For primary and general elections in Maryland this year there has been expended nearly one million dollars. This sum had been contributed by the city and counties for registration and for conduct of elections and by candidates, their friends, officeholders and others. In Baltimore alone for the conduct of the municipal primary and election, for the September state primary and for the recent election there was expended about $300,000. The expenses in the counties were not in proportion to those in the city because of the lack of a spring primary and because in several counties the expense was partially avoided by agreements by the two parties in tickets without resorting to a primary contest.

There was only about $6,000 difference in the campaign funds of Mr. Nice, Republican, and Mr. Ritchie, Democrat, for governor. The total contributions to Mr. Ritchie's fund were $75,426.86, while the collections for Mr. Nice's fund were $69,222.97, a total of $144,649.83.

The Democrats, apparently, have a balance of nearly $10,000. This balance will, it is assumed, go toward a deficit which the Democrats suffered at the tail end of their last campaign.

The filing of the City Republican Committee report showing $11,504.97 contributed and $11,109.19 expended, according to the accounting of Clinton O. Richardson, brings the total expenditures directly or indirectly involved in the gubernatorial campaign up to $133,928.26.

Dr. J. Hubert Wade, Democratic state chairman, had a balance of $9,930.86, and John M. Requaardt, as treasurer of the Ritchie League, saved $22.87. In the Republican realm of campaign financing State Chairman Galen Tait saved a balance of $328.07; A. Walter Krauss, personal political agent for Mr. Nice, saved $11.79; Benjamin F. Applestein, treasurer of the Greater Baltimore Brooding League, saved $30.20, and the balance in hand reported by C. O. Richardson, treasurer of the City Committee, was $397.79, a total balance of $767.84.

Dave's Handicap

By IZOLA FORRESTER

(Copyright, 1919, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Connie held her breath to catch the words over the party wire. It had not been her fault, unconsciously eavesdropping on David. She had picked up the receiver to call a number and the very sound of his voice had made her hesitate and listen when she found he was talking to Hardy Goodwin.

"I'll be able to meet it next month, surely, Hardy, if you can hold it over until then. No, not the principal, but I can swing the interest."

Then came Hardy's voice, curt and businesslike. He was sorry, but he had a good buyer for the Ashley place, and the firm would not allow him to let the mortgage go for a matter of sentiment. Besides, Dave had given his word he would meet it the 15th.

"But my mother has been very ill, you knew that, didn't you? I've had to pay for nurses and the hospital bill besides, I could not foresee that, Hardy."

Connie hung up softly and stood motionless, staring out of the window at the row of maples that served as windbreak before the house. She had wondered why Dave had not asked her to marry him, and now she knew. It was his mother and the burden of debt on them.

Her hands clenched as she thought of Hardy daring to press the mortgage and put them out of the old Ashley place, Hardy, who had gone to school with both the boys and had been Hal's chum before his death. She crossed quickly to her desk and picked up Hardy's letter that had come that morning, asking her to go to the yacht races across the Sound. He would sail his own, the Reminder, he told her. Did she remember why he had named it that?

Connie bit her lip. It had been a little boy and girl joke between them.

Hardy's Going to Foreclose.

ever since she had turned him away for Dave, and was to remind her of his being, like Barkis, "willin'."

Then she thought of Dave, big, curly haired, blue eyed, with a smile that everybody in town would have accepted as legal tender. Ever since his father's death and Hal's he had kept up the home for Mrs. Ashley. Connie often stopped her runabout before the lovely old-fashioned garden to chat with her, and sometimes take her for a drive.

She had not been strong since the doctor's death, and Connie often thought she was like one of her own fragrant day lilies, slender and white and fragile. She shut her eyes tightly at the thought of her living in one of the boarding houses down along River street after half a life-time in the picture of the old Ashley homestead. Then she stepped across the hall into the long study that crossed the end of the house.

"Love me, dad?" she asked, as she always did before she "landed," as the head of the house expressed it. She perched on the arm of his chair and rumbled his hair thoughtfully.

"How much?" frowned Mr. Wade. "Don't try to mollify me, Connie, when you want something, I know you."

"All right, then. Strictly business," Connie sat down in front of him seriously, and he laughed. "I mean it now, dad, truly. Do you like Dave Ashley?"

"I like him, yes, but with limitations," his gray eyes twinkling. "I don't want him in the family, but I like him."

Connie's eyes never wavered as she looked at him.

"How much money did Grandmother Walton leave me?"

"About ten thousand. It's gone over that now, on compound interest since you were five. Going to leave home and father, Con?" He slipped his arm around her teasingly.

"No, of course not. I wouldn't marry even Dave if you said no, flatly, but you wouldn't," Connie added confidently, "not if I really wanted him. Don't worry, dad; he hasn't asked me, and he won't not with the handicap, he's under. I want you to go to Goodwin & Hart and take over the Ashley mortgage with my money, and not let Dave know who has it. Hardy's going to foreclose, with Mrs. Ashley just home from the hospital."

Mr. Wade started back at her, suddenly alert and aroused. The Ashleys had been neighbors for years, and the doctor a close friend. He rose and took down his hat from the old antelope antlers on the wall. Connie never spoke as he swung out of the door like a boy and down the walk to the street.

She saw him turn at the corner on the way downtown, and then dropped in the willow chair by the desk and laid her head on it. Even if he did help on the mortgage, she knew it would not put Dave on his feet, nor lift the barrier between them. It would only tide him over until he could get a start. She sat in the study until it was almost dark and Mrs. Hopkins came to say supper was ready twice. Finally she heard steps on the walk, and two figures came up to the door. She tried to fasten up her rumpled hair when she heard Dave's voice in the hall.

"I've brought him back to supper because we've got to talk over some business," said Mr. Wade cheerfully. "Hope you've got something good to eat, Con. Better open up some of those strawberry preserves and the pickled apricots. Can't have apricot brandy any more, Dave, but they haven't shut down on pickles yet. Sit down and get your breath. It's all right, Connie. I've got the mortgage."

He went out of the room and left them together. Connie could not speak. His directness left her without defense, and she wondered if Dave knew she had overheard his trouble on the wire.

"I don't understand all this," he said a bit huskily, running his fingers through his hair in the boyish way she remembered. "Hardy was jamming me on the money and your father's taken it over. Says it can run indefinitely. Offered me a place down in the railroad office if I care to take it. Said he didn't want me to be under any handicap. What did he mean?"

Connie looked at the bowl of fresh cut late roses on the table, the crushy pink ones that always came after all the rest had fallen, and her face held the same tint. The voice of her father startled them both as he sauntered back into the room, his hands deep in his pockets.

"I'll tell you why I did it, son. When I was your age I was handicapped, too. I loved Connie's mother, and we had to wait six years before I was in a position to marry her. We never caught up on those lost years of youth, and I made up my mind then that when my girl came for anybody well enough to marry him—"

"Dad," Connie's voice was desperate with warning, but the light in Dave's eyes as he looked back at her silenced her.

Mr. Wade's eyes twinkled merrily. "Didn't you know Connie intended to marry you, Dave? Why, mercy, she's talked of nothing else since she was five, and I thought it was all settled."

"I just didn't dare ask her, Mr. Wade," faltered Dave. "I didn't have any right to, the way we were situated."

"That's it. Same way with me. Well, I want you to have a fair running chance now, without any handicap. Ask her if you want to, and you'd better call up Thompson tonight and tell him you'll report on that job in the morning. There's thirty-five a week to start, and Connie's got quite a bundle herself."

He picked up the evening paper and strolled out to the dining room. The two turned to look at each other, Connie shrinking back against the wall as he came toward her.

"I don't want to wait six years, do you, Connie?" he said. "Gee, I don't see how your father ever guessed I was in trouble. Isn't he a brick, though? Do you suppose he really meant—"

"Tell the boy yes, as soon as you can, Connie. The biscuits are getting cold," called Mr. Wade comfortably from the dining room, and Dave asked no more questions, but reached for his own.

Robinson Crusoe.

On October 4, 1704, Alexander Selkirk, a Scottish mariner, was abandoned on the island of Juan Fernandez. Selkirk had quarreled with the captain of the ship, a quick-tempered man named Pradling, who ordered him put ashore on the nearest uninhabited island. When Juan Fernandez was reached Selkirk was landed on the island and left there with nothing but what he carried on his person and a fowling piece with a little ammunition. Until he was rescued three years later he supported life by living on fish, fruit, and wild goats.

Pershing Decorated.

A young American soldier had just finished painting a door panel in one of the halls of the Hotel Crillon in Paris. With his paint can in his hand he hurried around the corner and bumped into an officer in uniform who was hurrying in an opposite direction. As the officer brushed the splashed paint from his uniform the soldier made profuse apologies.

"Oh, that's all right," replied the officer, "only be less speedy the next time you and your paint come around the corner."

The officer was General Pershing.

MEDICINE TIME.

"Now, you are sure you won't forget to give the lad his medicine every two hours?" asked Doctor Slash.

"Not likely," returned Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge, Ark. "Half an hour before it's time he'll be setting up in bed hollering and cussing that he'll be dod-blasted to tunkett if he'll take a blinky-blanked drop of any everlasting-jammed medicine left by any dad-donged old fool of a dod-durned doctor, and no blankity-blanked dad of his'n had better try to make him take it, neither."

It Didn't Work.

"Attractive visitor you had just now."

"Yes," said the impressionable business man. "She's a book agent and the best-looking person who has been about these premises in many a day."

"What's she selling?"

"A life of Cleopatra. I thought I might lead up to suggesting a little dinner for two by saying I liked the modern 'vamps' much better, but she merely fixed me with a cold stare, took my order for a copy of 'Cleopatra' and swept out."

OF COURSE.

"This article says that we should give our shoes a day off occasionally."

"To rest their weary soles, eh?"

TOO HARROWING.

"Mrs. Jagsby has for years had curiosity to see the inside of Mr. Jags-by's favorite saloon, where he used to purchase most of his 'packages.'"

"Quite natural."
"Yes, and it was gratified the other day. Mrs. Jagsby dropped in with two or three other ladies and had ice-cream soda."

"I don't suppose she could induce
Mr. Jagsby to go along?"
"No. He was afraid he might break down."

Doubtful.

First Traveler—Well, good-by.
Please to have met you and made your acquaintance. Hope we shall meet again soon and cement this pleasant friendship.

Second Traveler—So long, old chap, and if ever you come within a few miles of my home I sincerely hope you will stop there.

Fair Warning.

Edward, a six-year-old urchin, accidentally cut his shoe with his knife and his father proceeded to scold him at great length for his carelessness.
The little fellow listened patiently for a time, then, looking at his father, said:

"Papa, if you don't stop talking so much about it you'll get me mad, too."

JUST MY LUCK.

Bill Goat—There's a nice dress shirt, and my doctor has forbidden a starch diet!

Colossal Finance.

Though figures higher still may go
I'll take no less of the amount.
A billion is not much, I know.
But it's as high as I can count.

Home Wreckers.

"Ah, a window full of home wreckers."

"What do you mean?"

"I was referring to that imposing display of gas stoves."

"Still, I don't understand."

"They are home wreckers for bride brought up on jazz."

Limit of Safety.

"Doesn't seem to be any limit to what you fellows think you can charge."

"Yes, sir, there's a limit. For instance, if I charge you too much for cleaning your straw hat, you'll get a new lid."

Both in Fact.

First Relative—The idea of old Uncle Peter devising all his money for the erection of a mausoleum over his remains. It's just willful waste.

Second Relative—Huh! I call it wasteful will.

A Look Ahead.

"Can you really tell anything about the future?"

"Oh, yes," said the fortune-teller.
"I know, for instance, that my landlord ain't going to get his rent next month."

Bait.

"Isn't that wrap a little large for you?" asked the husband.

"Yes," said the wife. "The cook is preparing to leave, and I'm getting clothes near enough to her size to keep her interested in lingering."

NO WORK FOR HER.
"So you've discharged the cook?"
"Yes. It seemed silly to retain her when I can't get food enough in the house to keep her busy."

Perversity.
Perhaps their money pleasure brings
To those who hoard.
But there's a joy in doing things
One can't afford.

Putting on Side.
Diner—How is it that the terrapin on your bill of fare is always struck out?

Candid Walter—That's just a fancy touch, sir. We never had a terrapin in the joint.

Obliging.
"I told Jack I would like to see him try to kiss me."

"What did he do?"

"Well, Jack always tries to do what I like."

Too Dangerous.
"An aviator cannot brag of his family."

"Why not?"

"Because in his case there is little cause for boasting of descent."

Naturally.

"LIFE SAVING CREWS" WILL FIGHT DISEASE

Red Cross Christmas Seals Will Finance Campaign To Save Lives Sacrificed To Tuberculosis.

Buy Seals—And Save Lives.

"Life Saving Crews" are now being organized in every county of Maryland. They are the committees of men and women being formed to conduct this year's extra big Red Cross Christmas Seal campaign.

It is to be the biggest drive of its kind that the state has ever seen. It will differ from many money campaigns waged in recent months in that practically all of the money subscribed will be expended in the communities in which the funds are raised. And the money is to be expended in that greatest of all causes—the saving of human lives and the promotion of health and happiness.

Incidentally and indirectly, it is to be a drive to help reduce the high cost of living since it aims at protecting the health of the producers—and everybody admits that one of the most potent causes of the present high prices is the deficit in the amount of production of every-day necessities.

All the funds derived through the sale of seals is used in the fight against tuberculosis and is expended in various ways—educational work, nursing and medical service, sanatorium care for the tuberculous and in other ways suggested by the American Red Cross and the National Tuberculosis Association.

In addition to the seals which sell for a penny a-piece, Red Cross seal campaigners this year will have for sale Health Bonds ranging in denominations from $5 to $500 which will be offered to purchasers who would like to contribute more to the tuberculosis campaign than the price of the number of seals they would be able actually to use.

Maryland is one of the states that will have to put up a strong fight to keep pace with other states in anti-tuberculosis work. In the state 2914 persons died of tuberculosis last year—the death rate for Maryland being nearly 44 per cent greater than that for the nation as a whole. This is not a record to be proud of and every effort will be made to provide the nurses, sanatoria, clinics and medical service, as well as the educational work needed to cure and prevent the disease. The Little Red Cross Christmas Seals will finance this work.

Here are the numbers of people who died needlessly from the disease in the counties of Maryland last year: Allegany, 58; Anne Arundel, 96; Baltimore, 532 (only 263 of these being actual residents of the county); Calvert, 22; Caroline, 42; Carroll, 44; Cecil, 26; Charles, 38; Dorchester, 65; Frederick, 183; Garrett, 9; Harford, 45; Howard, 21; Kent, 37; Montgomery, 47; Prince George, 63; Queen Anne, 32; Somerset, 39; St. Mary's, 47; Talbot, 31; Washington, 73; Wicomico, 63; Worcester, 28; Baltimore city, 1273.

The country as a whole will be asked to buy $6,500,000 worth of the Little Red Cross Christmas Seals. Maryland's quota is $125,000 worth. Each Seal is a Penny's Worth of Cure and Prevention.

TO TRAIN THE TUBERCULOUS

Vocational Work To Make Discharged Patients Self-Supporting.

"It has been repeatedly demonstrated to us," says Dr. Martin F. Sloan, of Eudowood Tuberculosis Sanatorium at Towson, Md., "that patients are able to work sooner and more comfortably and hold up better at the Sanatorium under medical supervision than when they return to the city either to an old or to a new position, and our experience convinces us more and more that the problem of employment of the discharged consumptive has not been solved, and never will be until institutions are equipped with vocational training industries that will find something suitable and profitable for every arrested case to do and at the same time keep him more or less under medical supervision in a community in the country."

The National Tuberculosis Association is laying special emphasis on this very question of vocational training for the tuberculous patient. It has just appointed specialists in vocational work to cooperate with the army doctors in training soldiers and sailors disabled by tuberculosis and now under treatment in government hospitals. This work is financed largely through the sale of Red Cross Christmas seals. Everyone is urged to help by buying seals. It is planned to sell 12,500,000 of them in Maryland.

Healthy homes in Maryland depend upon one thing: An intelligent educational campaign throughout the State. Buy Red Cross Christmas Seals and an educational campaign is assured.

This well-known preparation has been one of the national remedies of Holland for centuries. In 1896 the government of the Netherlands granted a special charter authorizing its preparation and sale.

The housewife of Holland would almost as soon be without food as without her "Real Dutch Drops," as she quaintly calls GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. They restore strength and are responsible in a great measure for the sturdy, robust health of the Hollanders.

Do not delay. Go to your druggist and insist on his supplying you with GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. Take them as directed, and if you are not satisfied with results your druggist will gladly refund your money. Look for the name GOLD MEDAL on the box and accept no other. Better Stories To Be Told.

"Let me write the songs of the nation and I care not who makes the laws," was the idea of a luncheon given recently by T. Tokonami, minister of home affairs, at his official residence to story tellers and singers from the cheaper amusement halls of Tokio. Japan has hundreds of story-telling halls, which vie with the cinemas in attracting throngs unable to attend more expensive entertainments. Tokonami said that the songs and stories of the people have a great influence on the character of the Japanese community, and he urged his guests to give the public only that which will elevate the mind and character, as well as prove interesting and artistic.—From the Japan Society Bulletin.

New Zealand's Trade With Japs.

Japan's imports into New Zealand are increasing rapidly, and they consist almost entirely of manufactured goods. During the war period large quantities of Japanese goods flooded this market, some of which were of a fairly good quality, but some were very shoddy. The shoddy goods were imported chiefly during 1916 and 1917, since which time the quality of the Japanese manufactures has greatly improved.

Refined Robbery.

"I don't understand all these day-light robberies," said the police officer.

"The explanation is easy," replied the criminologist. "Robbers now have their own motor cars. Wealth brings refinement and they do not care to come into contact with the rough element one is likely to meet on the streets at night."

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and for years it was supposed to be incurable. Doctors prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Catarrh is a local disease, greatly influenced by constitutional conditions and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Medicine, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is a constitutional remedy, is taken internally and acts through the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces of the System. One Hundred Dollars reward is offered for any case that Hall's Catarrh Medicine fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

BUY RED CROSS CHRISTMAS SEALS---THEY SAVE LIVES

Maryland is called upon to buy $125,000 worth of the Red Cross Christmas Seals for 1919. This is the State's quota in the budget of the National Tuberculosis Association, which carries on a nation-wide fight against the disease. Every seal is a penny's worth of cure and prevention. This is a picture of the booth from which Red Cross Christmas Seals for 1919 will be sold.

RED CROSS CHRISTMAS SEALS TO SAVE LIVES

Last Year 2914 Died Needlessly Of Tuberculosis In Maryland.

Seals Finance Fight Against Disease

Startling facts are revealed in the report just made public by the State Board of Health showing the number of people in Baltimore and the counties of Maryland who died of pulmonary tuberculosis during the past year and the number at present known to be suffering from the disease. Taken in connection with the warning given by leading health authorities everywhere that influenza is the best runner-up of the tuberculosis score yet known to medical science and the threatened return of the "flu" in epidemic form, these figures are enough to "throw a scare" into the most self-satisfied community and into each citizen of Baltimore.

The number of deaths from the disease in the state, of which 1,273 were in Baltimore city, totaled 2,914. Known to be suffering from the disease were 3,669 persons, of whom 2,083 were resident in Baltimore city. In other words, the death rate last year from tuberculosis in Maryland was 204.5 per 100,000 of population, taking 1,425,000 as the estimated population of the state. The rate for the country as a whole was only 141.6, which means that Maryland had 44 per cent more deaths from tuberculosis than the average for the nation.

The State of Maryland is one of the sore spots on the national health map. The figures by counties follow: Allegany, 58; Anne Arundel, 96; Baltimore, 263; Calvert, 22; Caroline, 42; Carroll, 44; Cecil, 26; Charles, 38; Dorchester, 65; Frederick, 183; Garrett, 9; Harford, 45; Howard, 21; Kent, 37; Montgomery, 47; Prince George, 63; Queen Anne, 32; Somerset, 39; St. Mary's, 47; Talbot, 31; Washington, 73; Wicomico, 63; Worcester, 28. The Frederick county figures include the deaths of many non-residents in the state tuberculosis hospital.

To lower the death rate, intensive educational work, visiting tuberculosis nurses in every community, special tuberculosis clinics and more tuberculosis hospitals are needed. Maryland must have $125,000 to carry on this work during the next year. It can be raised through the sale of the Little Red Cross Christmas Seals, which are again offered to the public beginning December 1. The country as a whole will be expected to buy $6,500,000 of the seals. Every man, woman and child must buy ten seals each if the quota of the state is to be reached.

THIS IS THE RED CROSS CHRISTMAS SEAL FOR 1919

TUBERCULOSIS DEATHS INCREASED BY "FLU"

Dr. Sloan, Of Eudowood Sanatorium, Finds 16 Per Cent More Cases Resulting From Epidemic.

No one is safe from tuberculosis and this year the people of Maryland are in special danger. Maryland was one of the states in which the Spanish influenza last winter prevailed in especially severe form. The death toll was tremendous. There were, however, many victims of the "flu" who recovered. Statistics compiled by medical experts show that a startling number of these "flu" cases have since developed tuberculosis.

Dr. Martin F. Sloan, superintendent of Eudowood Sanatorium at Towson, Maryland, says that an increase of at least 16 per cent in the number of tuberculosis cases has resulted from the "flu" epidemic of last winter. Out of the patients admitted to the hospital, 16 per cent of them were perfectly strong and healthy before contracting the "flu." That disease so weakened their constitutions that they are unable to fight the tuberculosis germ and practically all of these cases are hopeless.

There is still fear of a recurrence of the "flu" scourge. There have been enough cases of the disease to make the public health officials in the state and in the wake of the epidemic there will occur increased numbers of cases of tuberculosis. To prevent and to cure these cases, the Maryland Tuberculosis Association as the state representative of the National Tuberculosis Association, urges every county and every community to organize its forces to help fight the White Death.

There is scarcely a family in the state that has not or will not feel the touch of this twin pair of scourges, influenza and tuberculosis. Many of the counties now have organizations to push the work. Every community that has no organization and wants to get into an active fight against this enemy, can do so by going to work and lining up the citizens of the community. Then, notify the Maryland Tuberculosis Association, and suggestions for work, printed matter and other assistance will be gladly furnished.

All of the county work can be financed by the sale of the Red Cross Christmas seals, of which Maryland is expected to buy 12,500,000. The quotas of the counties are as follows: Garrett, $800; Allegany, $2,500; Washington, $2,375; Frederick, $3,100; Carroll, $2,000; Montgomery, $925; Baltimore, $2,750; Harford, $1,650; Howard, $875; Anne Arundel, $325; Prince George, $325; Calvert, $200; St. Mary's, $200; Charles, $200; Cecil, $700; Kent, $700; Queen Anne's, $700; Talbot, $700; Wicomico, $700; Dorchester, $700; Somerset, $700; Caroline, $700.

MARYLAND HAS 35,000 TUBERCULOUS

In the State of Maryland last year, 2,914 persons died of tuberculosis. And there were 3,669 persons reported suffering from it, according to the State Board of Health's statistics. Practically every community has nine times as many cases as are "reported," if the expert investigations and surveys of the National Tuberculosis Association are to be trusted. This means that there are over 35,000 cases of tuberculosis in Maryland today. To wage a winning fight against this dread disease, the Maryland Tuberculosis Association needs $125,000. This must be raised through the sale of Red Cross Christmas Seals for 1919.
